Greeks Blast Rebels From Key Position To Konitsa

Commando Units Clear Mountain, Open Way for Full Reinforcements

Athens, Dec. 30 (AP).—Regular Greek army forces lunged tonight to within light artillery range of guerillas besieging Konitsa after Greek commando units knocked guerilla fighters off mountain heights dominating the strategic Bourazani Bridge 11 miles west of Konitsa.

Artillery units were already reported lobbing shells into the Communist-led forces north and west of Konitsa.

The defeat of the guerillas atop the snow-covered Vigla heights dominating the bridge opened the way for full-scale reinforcements to the beleagured garrison in Konitsa.

A Ministry of War communique said rebel resistance was "petering out."

Wanted City for Capital

The guerillas sought to capture Konitsa, only five miles from the Albania border, as a capital for the separate Greek Communist state proclaimed by the guerilla chieftain, Gen. Markos Vafiades.

The commandoes who succeeded in driving the guerillas from the peaks in the battle for the Vigla heights were under the command of Major Zacharkis, a veteran who fought with the British eighth army in North Africa.

The Conservative newspaper Ethnos said such a brigade was moving toward the Greek frontier.

Press dispatches described the fight for the town last night as a "night of crisis" and said the defensive perimeter was filled with the bodies of guerillas who died in vain attempts to storm the city.

A guerilla broadcast said Konitsa had been entered from the southwest last night and fighting was proceeding in the heart of the city.

The guerillas were using 20-mm. machine guns as antiaircraft batteries against Greek air power, and managed to score only one hit on a plane yesterday, advices here said.

U. N. Commission Acts

In Salonika, the United Nations Special Commission on the Balkans unanimously passed a resolution saying any recognition of the Communist state in Greece, followed by "indirect or direct" aid to the Vlfiades regime, would constitute "a threat to the maintenance of international peace and security."

Communist newspapers in Europe have predicted the Soviet satellite states—including Greece's northern neighbors, Yugoslavia,

Boeing to Build 82 More B-50 Bombers For Air Force

The Air Force announced yesterday award of a 60-million-dollar contract for 82 more B-50 bombers to the Boeing Aircraft Co.

This is the second contract for the long range bombers let under a program which contemplates eventual purchase of a total of 215. A previous contract provided for 133. Only two of the bombers have been delivered.

The B-50, the Air Force said, is similar in appearance to the wartime B-29 but can cruise 25 per cent faster and has a top speed approaching 400 miles an hour. Its maximum range considerably exceeds that of the B-29.

Investigation of Fatal Collapse

Supporting Wall of Empire Building Altered, Contractor Says; No Permit Issued for Change

ARCHWAYS SHOWN—This photograph, an official exhibit yesterday in the investigation of the Empire Building collapse, was examined by two witnesses. The two archways (arrows) were extended in the renovations, according to one witness, Harry Atkinson, a veteran building contractor. A second witness said another wall was removed Testimony that portions of a weight-bearing wall on the first floor were removed was offered yesterday at a hearing on the cause of the partial collapse of the Empire Building apartment-hotel.

The hearing, held by a special five-man committee appointed by Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young also heard testimony of a second witness that another wall had been removed in renovation of the first floor interior.

No permits for removal or alteration of walls in the Empire Building have been issued during the past decade, officials of the District Department of Inspections revealed after the hearing.

Collapse Killed Four

The changes pointed to by the two witnesses were made in space which was occupied by the City Finance Co. at the time of the collapse on December 16. The collapse killed four persons and injured 12 others. The seven-story building is located on the southwest corner of the intersection of New York ave. and 9th st. nw.

The testimony developed after the witnesses examined a photograph of the interior of the finance company's office space. The collapse involved this portion of the building.

Harry Atkinson, building contractor of 3439 14th st. nw., revealed that in October or November, 1946, he had been asked to offer estimates on the cost of altering the ground floor interior.

At that time, he found two openings in what he described as a "bearing partition" on which much of the remaining structure rested. One was 9 feet wide and the other 4 feet. The job was never begun, but in April or May of this year when he visited the premises again he noticed that the openings had been enlarged.

Further Inquiry Pledged

All five members of the board showed great interest in this statement and fired questions at Atkinson, a veteran contractor who has been in the business for more than a quarter century.

Atkinson said he had declined to take the job unless the prospective clients were willing to properly shore, underpin and needle the wall during the alterations. This would jump the cost up "into the thousands" and therefore it was not undertaken, he testified.

After the session was completed without a date from a White House desk, and is still missing.

The President had previously said the legislation was "pitifully inadequate" for the job of holding prices down. His press secretary, Charles G. Ross, had called the bill "worthless". But he said the investigation for the missing original was still being pressed, "apace".

The grain limitation order, which Secretary of Agriculture Anderson issued, was in accordance with the act's only grant of compulsory allocation powers. These apply only until the end of January. But Anderson used the power to continue until that time the "distillers' holiday."

Actually, he granted an allocation to the distillers of 2,450,000 bushels until February 1, or less than one-third the amount they used during the same period in 1947.

The Commerce Department's action an exports made use of new language in the law. It permits the department's Office of International Trade to take the price factor into consideration when it grants licenses for the export of scarce items.

Hitherto, the OIT explained, it had been guided in granting licenses by the "historic pattern" in the export industry. That is, an exporting company was granted licenses to sell goods abroad in the same proportion relative to total

G Street Blaze Kills Fireman, Injures Others

A Washington fireman was killed, another seriously burned and many more were overcome by smoke yesterday when a three-alarm fir roared through an optical shop at 711 G st. nw.

The victim, an Air Force veteran who became engaged Christmas day, was Pvt. Leon M. Nevitt, 25, of 216 S st. nw., a member of No. 2 truck company. He had served on the force two years.

Pvt. Robert T. Eichaltz, 37, 1034 Crittenden st. ne. of No. 1 Rescue Squad was admitted to Emergency Hospital suffering first and second-degrees burns to his hands and face.

Five persons who lived in a rooming house above the Hillyard Optical Shop were led to safety down fire ladders.

Fire Chief Clement Murphy last night appointed a three-man board to investigate Nevitt's death. The board, consisting of Battalion Chiefs P. A. Davis and E. T. Sweeney and Capt. W. V. Jones of the Eighteenth Engine Company, met at 7 p. m. at fire headquarters.

The blaze, which started in the basement of the four-story building, was confined to the basement and first floor. Upper floors were

Fowler Differs With Expert

'Disgrace' of D. C. Mental Care Blamed on Gallinger Officials

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Gallinger Hospital officials themselves are to blame for "deplorable" conditions in the hospital's psychiatric wards, Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler charged yesterday.

Fowler took sharp issue with a 35-page survey report submitted Monday by Dr. Samuel Bernard Wortis, noted psychiatric authority, which implied that Congress and the Commissioners had failed to appropriate sufficient money for needed improvements.

Funds available for psychiatric services either were not used or diverted to other departments due to "lax administration," Fowler told the Commissioners.

Dr. Alvin Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, immediately denied the charge and labled it "unfair criticism." "We have, if anything, given special attention to the psychiatric service," he asserted.

On Fowler's recommendation, the Commissioners approved the following steps for improving Gallinger's psychiatric services:

1. Relieve Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert as chief of the hospital's psychiatric division so he can become full-time District alienist.

2. Ask Congress for authority to set up a new $7500-a-year job of Chief Medical Officer of Psychiatry.

3. Request a $50,500 appropriation from Congress to replace

Truman Drops Landis as CAB Chairman

Last of Roosevelt's Early 'Brain Trust' Won't Be Reappointed

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

James M. Landis, last member of the early Roosevelt "brain trust" remaining in government, is about to leave the Washington stage.

At the White House late yesterday, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross announced that President Truman would not reappoint Landis as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. He did not say why; neither did he say whether Mr. Truman had picked Landis' successor.

Landis, whose term expires with arrival of the New Year, declined to make a statement. His friends said he got short notice from the White House that he was to be let out, and they suspected that the news had been something of a jolt to him. They thought he might have something to say later on.

The Air Line Pilots Association, which made a last-minute effort to save Landis' job, charged that he had incurred the wrath of air line executives because he fought those who placed "the dollar ahead of safety."

Stanton Griffis, New York investment banker now serving as Ambassador to Poland, was reported in aviation circles as likely to succeed Landis as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. He was said to have the support of Secretary of Commerce Harriman.

Representatives of the Pilots Association were threatening to make a fight against Griffis on Capitol

Democrat Senators Say Taft And Wallace Have Same Aims

Wallace Offers Seven-Point Plan To Aid Europe

Milwaukee, Dec. 30 (AP).—Independent Presidential Candidate Henry Wallace proposed tonight a seven-point "Wallace Plan," financed by all nations "possessed of the means" and administered by the United Nations, to rehabilitate the nations of Europe.

Wallace, who last night announced he would be a candidate for the Presidency as an independent, said his plan "will guarantee that it is not directed against any country or doctrine but against hunger, poverty and chaos."

"We propose a plan of international action through the United Nations, not unilateral action by the United States," Wallace said. "Our plan will couple self-help with economic aid, all directed to the common purpose of rehabilitating the war-devastated lands, strengthening world collaboration and promoting the cause of peace."

The "Wallace Plan" includes:

1. A proposal from the United States to the United Nations for the establishment of a U. N. reconstruction fund.

2. Administration of the fund by an agency of the U. N. established for that purpose.

3. The fund to be "made up of

Sparkman Asserts Both Striving to Wreck Marshall Plan

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Leading Administration Senators yesterday lashed out as one at Henry A. Wallace and Senator Robert A. Taft in the first clew to Democratic preconvention strategy.

"They're bedfellows," said Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), chairman of the Democratic speakers' bureau in the last campaign.

"When Wallace said he preferred Taft to Truman, he meant what he said," agreed Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), frequently mentioned for second place on the Truman ticket.

Sparkman 'Pools' Opposition

Sparkman told reporters he thought the best Democratic answer to Wallace's third-party bolt, and GOP elation over it, is to "pool the opposition" for the campaign's duration and "treat them as one."

"The Communist fellow travelers behind Wallace and Republican reactionaries supporting Taft are after the same thing," charged Sparkman.

"They want to defeat Mr. Truman, of course, but most of all they want to wreck the Marshall Plan and our bipartisan foreign policy."

O'Mahoney said his attitude is

Distillers' Grain Use Limited as President Signs Republican Bill

By Alfred Friendly

Government agencies moved promptly yesterday to put into effect such powers as were granted them by the new Republican anti-inflation law.

The Commerce Department issued a new policy applying to the export of scarce commodities. The Secretary of Agriculture issued, as he had previously said he would, an order limiting the amount of grain which distillers can use.

The anti-inflation bill was made into law yesterday morning, when President Truman signed a duplicate copy which had been flown to Massachusetts for the necessary signature of House Speaker Martin. The original bill had vanished

General Electric Announces Price Cuts

New York, Dec. 30 (U.P.).—The General Electric Co. today announced an average price reduction of 5 per cent on a wide range of its products, effective January 1. The reductions will save consumers an estimated 50 million dollars in 1948, the company said.

Charles E. Wilson, president, stressed that the reductions were in the hope that it will help reverse the inflationary spiral and inspire other companies to make reductions, too.

The price reductions, ranging from 3 to 10 per cent, affect such electrical appliances as refrigerators, electric ranges, and home radio and television receivers. The company also reduced prices of component parts which it supplies to other appliance manufacturers.

Bucharest, Romania, Dec. 30 (AP). Young King Mihai announced his abdication to a bewildered populace today, and the government promptly proclaimed Romania a "popular democratic republic."

A member of the government said the 26-year-old former monarch was now free to live in Romania and marry Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma and Denmark, but the King's abdication proclamation said he was resigning the throne because a monarchy no longer coincided with the "great political, economic and social changes" in this Communist-dominated land.

A high government source said Mihai "probably will" marry the 24-year-old Princess Anne and may go to Switzerland soon to meet her. He said Mihai was free to "settle down" in Romania or elsewhere. It was in Switzerland that Mihai spent more than two weeks recently awaiting in vain his government's permission to marry the blonde princess.

An unconfirmed British press report Monday night said the government, influenced by Ana Pauker, Communist Foreign Minister, had vetoed the proposed royal match.

(Official British sources in London said the abdication "obviously removes the last remaining obstacle in the way of a new East European

Wheat Export Goal Slashed By 11 Per Cent

Cut to 450 Million Bushels, 50 Million Under Truman Figure

America's goal for wheat exports this year has been cut to 450 million bushels—50 million under the figure fixed by President Truman when he set up the present food conservation drive.

Only that will be possible, the Agriculture Department indicated yesterday in its end-year "Wheat Situation Report," if growing conditions are normal for the now-planted winter crop.

With normal weather until harvest next June and July, another billion-bushel crop may result, the forecast says. This year's all-time record crop was 1365 million bushels.

However, prospects are that next year's export will have to be limited to 300 million bushels, just two thirds of what the Nation now hopes to furnish hungry nations abroad this crop year, the report said.

Already 260 million bushels have been exported since this crop year began July 1.

11 Convicts Slug Guards, Escape During Blizzard

Canon City, Colo., Dec. 30 (AP).—Eleven hardened convicts, including four murderers and two kidnapers, slugged four guards and escaped tonight from the Colorado State Prison under cover of a blinding snowstorm.

A fifth guard was unaccounted for and Warden Roy Best said "We're afraid he may have been kidnaped by these men." Best described the escapees as "all bad hombres—the worst we have in the prison."

Four automobiles were reported stolen immediately after the break from the isolation units where the prison's worst criminals are kept.

Best said they slugged the four guards with an iron bar. Two of the guards were carried from the cell block as hostages to the north gate where wall guards held their fire because of the captive guards. The prisoners smashed a lock on the gate and fled into the nearby residential area of West Canon City.

Negroes Win Appeal for Primary Vote

South Carolina Case Affecting Entire South Headed for High Court

Richmond, Va., Dec. 30 (AP).—The United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today that Negroes should have a right to vote in Democratic primaries in South Carolina.

Election officials had argued the Democratic Party in South Carolina is "a voluntary political association which can exercise unrestricted choice of membership."

The Appellate Court held, however, that "there was no error" in a lower court's decree which enjoined South Carolina election officials from denying qualified Negro voters a voice in the primaries.

The case is expected to go to the United States Supreme Court, where a decision upholding the District and Circuit Courts would have widespread effect on the South.

The Circuit Court said "The right to a voice in the selection of officers of Government on the part of all citizens is important, not only as a means of insuring that governments shall have the strength of popular support but also as a means of securing to the individual citizen proper consideration of his rights by those in power."

The opinion added:

"The disfranchised can never speak with the same force as those who are able to vote.

"No election machinery can be upheld if its purpose or effect is to deny to the Negro, on account of his race or color, an effective voice in the government of his country or the State or community wherein he lives."

To Succeed Margold

More Than 25 Considered For Municipal Court Judge

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

More than 25 names have been submitted for recommendation by the District Bar Association to fill the vacancy on the Municipal Court bench.

The available judgeship was caused by the recent death of Judge Nathan R. Margold.

Mentioned in legal circles as leading candidates for the position are Milton S. Kronheim, jr., 3701 Chesapeake st. nw.; Cyril Lawrence of the Dorchester House and Jacob N. Halper, 908 Heather ave., Takoma Park.

The Judicial Selection Committee of the legal group met twice this week in attempts to reach agreement on whom it will support for the post. Attorney General Tom C. Clark has agreed not to submit his selection to President Truman for consideration before receiving the names of persons the bar association will support, it was said.

George E. McNeil, president of the bar association, said when questioned about his choice for the judgeship:

"I just hope it will be a local man. The court must have men versed in the procedures we use here and who understand the problems of Washington."

Other persons known to be under consideration by the Judicial Selection Committee are:

51 Are Killed In Palestine Holy War's Fiercest Day

Arabs Go Berserk After Jews Roll Barrel Bomb Into Queue at Oil Plant

Jerusalem, Dec. 30 (U.P.).—Fifty-one Jews, Arabs and Britons died today by bombing, beating, stabbing or shooting in a wild orgy of hatred over the United Nations decision to partition Palestine.

For sheer ferocity, it was the bloodiest day in the Holy Land since the Arab revolt of 1936-1939.

Forty-seven of the victims—41 Jews and 6 Arabs—were killed in the great oil port of Haifa. Jews rolled a barrel bomb from a racing limousine into a queue of Arabs lined up in front of the Consolidated Oil Refinery, in which both Arabs and Jews are employed.

Arab workers in the plant, who outnumber the Jews, went berserk. As the bombers fled to safety the Arabs attacked every Jew they could find in the plant. They dragged fellow workers from offices and workshops and stabbed, beat and kicked them to death.

British Soldier Killed

Within a few minutes the battered bodies of Jews, interspersed with those of the few Arabs who were killed or wounded in the bombing, lay blood-smeared all over the plant and its vicinity. Seven Jews and 42 Arabs were wounded.

Tonight the vicinity of the plant was under heavy guard.

Two British soldiers were patroling Jerusalem's Agrippa rd. when unidentified gunmen fired on them. One was killed outright and the other died in a hospital soon afterward.

A Jew was walking along Mamillah st. here when an Arab mob gathered suddenly and seized him. They dragged him through the commercial center and then, putting a pistol to his head, shot him through the ears.

Refugee Ships Awaited

British navy ships lay off the coast tonight awaiting two former American freighters bringing nearly 12,000 Jewish refugees from Romania and Bulgaria. There were reports that the ships might head for Cyprus instead of Palestine.

Gravely anxious over the savagery which has characterized Arab-Jewish clashes of the last few days, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, British high commissioner, conferred at length with Sir Henry Gurney, chief secretary of the Palestine government, over the possibility of intensified security precautions.

Both army and police leaders feared that the situation, with red rage increasing among the more militant Jews and Arabs, might get completely out of hand.

Already, it was understood, the British government had been forced to schedule a so-far "slight" delay in its plans for the evacuation of Palestine.

Washington equaled its 1946 auto death toll yesterday when Mrs. Katherine Hurney, 70, of 1407 Hamilton st. nw., died of injuries suffered December 24.

Mrs. Hurney was struck at 11:05 a. m. when she stepped from a streetcar loading platform in the 6500 block of Georgia ave. nw. Driver of the car was listed as John C. Reed, 76, of 5502 8th st. nw.

Yesterday also saw nearby Arlington County record its ninth traffic fatality of the year in the death of 70-year-old Mose Pelham, of 2412 Wakefield st., Arlington. He was struck Monday night at Lee hwy. and North Albemarle st., and died 40 minutes later. Driver of the car, Mrs. Doris Moore, 51, of 1922 North Roosevelt st., was released on personal bond pending a hearing in Arlington County Court.

Meanwhile in Washington a plea went out from traffic officials for safe and sane driving during festive New Year's Eve. It was also a waring to drivers not to mix alcohol and gasoline.

In 45 accidents last New Year's eve, one persons was killed; 17 injured. On New Year's Day, there were 47 accidents, 21 injuries and one death.

Taylor 'Considers' Running Mate Bid

'It's a Family Affair,' He Declares, Citing Kinship to Wallace Aide

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Idaho's 43-year-old "Singing Cowboy" Senator Glen H. Taylor (Democrat) yesterday disclosed that his interest in Henry Wallace's independent ticket is a sort of "family" affair.

Taylor told reporters yesterday that it was his own first cousin, Harold H. Young, Wallace's one-man brain trust and Man Friday, who had asked him to become the former Agriculture Secretary's vice presidential running mate.

The Idaho Senator said he is giving the bid "very serious consideration," but has not yet definitely made up his mind.

Young, an outsize burly Texan, is "My mother's sister's boy," Taylor said.

The Idaho Democrat revealed that Young had approached him sometime ago to run on the Wallace ticket.

"So it's all in the family," quipped Taylor, a former coyboy vaudeville crooner.

At a press conference in Milwaukee yesterday Wallace said that Taylor would be "marvelous" as a running mate. He wanted a good speechmaker to team up with him, Wallace said.

The honey-voiced Taylor gained national attention for his participation in an all-night filibuster against the Taft-Hartley Act.

Will the open Communist support for the Wallace ticket prove embarrassing to Wallace's candidacy?" Taylor was asked.

"Yes, I suppose it will be, but it's just one of those things you can't help," Taylor replied.

Asked if he would denounce Communist support if he agreed to run as a vice presidential candidate with Wallace, Taylor replied:

"I won't denounce anyone. I think that a person has got a perfect right to be a Communist if they want to so long as they don't advocate violent overthrow of this Government. And I haven't seen any court convict them of that yet."

A little later he added, "I hate to say this because it seems like a concession to the red-baiters but I am not a Communist. If I was they'd have proved it long ago."

It's his strong opposition to the Marshall Plan, Taylor said, which has led him to consider joining the Wallace third party movement.

Greeks Attack Guerillas

ON THE KONITSA FRONT—Lines of fresh guerilla forces pouring in from Leskovic (1) in Albania, to strengthen rebel positions around besieged Konitsa (2) were breached yesterday by Greek government troops long enough to get a brigade of reinforcements inside the city. The guerillas are maintaining strong forces near Vassilikon and Elaphrotopos (3). The Greek forces moved toward Konitsa from Kalpaki and Ioannina (4)

Democratic Senators Say Taft And Wallace Have Same Aims

one of "indifference" to the Wallace breach, but similarly linked it with Taft's candidacy. He charged Wallace hopes to bring about the election of Senator Taft, and make his own really serious effort in four years.

"The country will see through it and it won't hurt Truman," said the Wyoming Democrat. "It will get more votes for Truman and the Marshall Plan.

Republicans Happy

Republicans continued to view the development as happy spectators, aiming pop bottles at both sides in the split.

"The Moscow wing of the Democratic Party has now parted company from the Pendergast wing," said Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece.

"The battle between the two factions will be highly interesting and, possibly, entertaining to the Nation and the Nation will be the winner when both gangs lose."

Reece said Wallace's bolt "does not change the political picture materially though it may increase the majority by which a Republican President will be elected in 1948."

He termed Wallace "that eminent authority on hybridism in agriculture and politics" and said Wallace left behind him "many of his fellow New Dealers and fellow travelers placed on the Federal payroll by himself and those who think as he does."

Other Developments

There were these other developments, as once sympathetic groups continued their drift away from Wallace:

1. Americans for Democratic Action, non-Communist liberal organization representing progressives in both parties, made this statement: "Mr. Wallace has issued his depressing invitation to disaster at a moment when progressives of every political faith are engaged in a desperate battle for the preservation of political and economic freedom for all peoples everywhere. We reject his invitation."

2. Jack Kroll, director of the CIO Political Action Committee, said it has been the policy of that group "not to support a third party in 1948." Kroll said the third party question probably will come up when the CIO-PAC executive board meets in Washington late next month to discuss "the entire political scene and . . . plans for the 1948 campaign."

The Americans for Democratic Action statement was issued through its officers, Wilson W. Wyatt, Leon Henderson, Franklin D. Roosevelt jr. and Hubert H. Humphrey.

Repudiating Wallace's candidacy, they said there is "overwhelming evidence that the Communists are the machine behind the third party," adding:

"The most fateful issues confronting the Nation are the fulfillment of the Marshall Plan for world recovery and the stabilization of our inflation-ridden economy at home. An unholy alliance of Communists and reactionaries is challenging that program."

Sparkman told reporters he thinks Wallace's platform "will parallel in many respects the Republican platform and we can attack them both with the same weapons."

Singling out Taft for an illustration, he said the Ohioan like Wallace intends to run on a "peace" platform. He compared Wallace's fight against universal military training to Taft's opposition to compulsory training in the form proposed by the Administration.

O'Mahoney predicted "the most ineffective third party movement in 50 years." He said Wallace will poll fewer votes than the late Robert M. LaFollette, who carried only his own State of Wisconsin in 1924.

Truman "Strengthened"

In Chicago, Senator Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), another top ranking Senate Democrat, said the third party threat has "immeasurably strengthened" Mr. Truman's position.

Lucas said Wallace "won't get enough votes to wad a shotgun with." The loss, he said, will be more than offset by independent Democratic and Republican votes for Truman.

Republicans generally took the opposite view that the Wallace breach crippled Truman prospects, but some didn't concur.

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) said he doubted it will have any noticeable effect on either party and Senator Arthur V. Watkins (R., Utah) said Republicans "certainly shouldn't slacken their work because of this development."

Kremlin Seen Cheered

In other comment:

Dr. Frank Kingdon, who resigned as cochairman of the Progressive Citizens of America after the PCA pledged support to Wallace, said: "Mr. Wallace's announcement . . . will bring cheers from the National Republican Club and the Kremlin."

Representative Vito Marcantonio (N. Y.) of the extreme left American Labor Party, termed Wallace's announcement "the Battle Hymn of the Republic in 1948, all over again. It gives Americans a real chance between wa rand peace."

Joseph N. Pew, Pennsylvania GOP leader: "I don't think it will leave a ripple."

Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.): "I wouldn't take Mr. Wallace too seriously and I don't think many others will either."

Wallace's Break Will Aid Party, Says Gov. Tuck

Richmond, Va., Dec. 30 (AP).—Governor Tuck today greeted the announcement by Henry A. Wallace that he will head a third political party with the statement that "Wallace's absence will greatly strengthen the Democratic Party."

Virginia's Democratic Governor said:

"I hope his candidacy will serve to purge the Democratic Party of the flagitious influences which have for the past few years plagued the people of America, irrespective of party."

Governor Tuck added that he "was never more proud of Virginia democracy than when in convention assembled at Roanoke in 1944 it took the unprecedented action of passing resolutions opposing Wallace for renomination for Vice President, leading to his complete repudiation by the national convention."

Wallace Offers 7-Point Plan

contributions appropriated by our Congress and other nations possessed of the means in an amount sufficient to finance an over-all five-year plan."

4. Priority in the allocation of funds to be given to those nations "which suffered most severely from axis aggression," with such allocations "based solely on these considerations of merit and need without regard to the character of the politics and social institutions of the recipient nations."

5. The allocation of funds "must be made with scrupulous respect for the national sovereignty of all beneficiary countries" and "there must be no political or economic conditions attached to loans or grants."

6. The entire fund "shall be used exclusively for peaceful purposes and no moneys shall be available to finance the purchase of military supplies, armaments or war preparations."

7. The German industrial heartland in the Ruhr Valley to be placed under international administration and control by the Big Four in order that its resources may be made available to aid in the reconstruction of Europe and "to guarantee that Germany shall never again be in a position to threaten the security of the world."

"These are essentials for world peace," Wallace declared. "I predict that unless our investments in foreign reconstruction are backed with sound domestic planning to control inflation, we shall witness a deadly resurgence of isolationism."

"Until I announced for President," Wallace continued, "Americans who elected Franklin Roosevelt four times had no choice for 1948." Wallace said his final decision to run was made "solely on the basis of giving the American people a chance to vote for peace and security."

"Millions upon millions of Americans fear to speak out against policies they know are dangerous," he asserted. "If they speak frankly, they fear loss of jobs. They have been intimidated by the current campaign which brands every progressive idea as communistic.'"

Wallace said he originally favored the Marshall Plan but that in its present form there are "fatal differences."

"With the Truman doctrine as its core, the so-called European recovery program is a plan to interfere in the social, economic and political affairs of countries receiving aid," he charged.

Lovett Warns Against Recognizing Red State

Undersecretary of State Lovett said yesterday it would be "clearly contrary to the principles of the United Nations Charter" if any nation recognized the newly proclaimed Greek Communist state.

Lovett added in a statement that if any of Greece's northern neighbors extends recognition, "the act would constitute an open disregard" of recent recommendations by the U. N. Assembly.

At a news conference, Lovett said also that the issue of using more American aid funds to buy military supplies for the Greek army is under constant consideration by the aid mission.

A reporter told Lovett there are reports that two Marine Corps divisions have been alerted for service in Greece and near Greece. The reporter asked whether the reports are true. Lovett told him to refer the question to the Marine Corps.

Taft Sees Export Surplus Raising Prices

St. Louis, Dec. 30 (AP).—Expressing doubt that the Marshall Plan "will really do the good in Europe which is claimed," Senator Robert A. Taft tonight described the Nation's surplus of exports as "the most important cause of high prices today."

Passage by Congress of the Marshall Plan in the form proposed would "necessarily mean higher prices," the Ohio candidate for the Republican presidential nomination said in an address prepared for delivery before the John Marshall Club.

In discussing the plan, Taft expressed belief "we tend to overestimate the importance of American dollars on foreign nations" and added:

"As far as I can discover much less than half of the sum asked is for relief or for food or for fuel. Most of it is to help build up European industry, a kind of a five-year plan like Stalin's, or like a European TVA. . . .

"I believe we should be generous but I do not think the lavish dispensation of American dollars is going to do as much to prevent Communism as a careful dispensation of aid to meet special problems. . . .

"The extent to which American shipments are really used to combat communism may well depend more on the propaganda that is used than on what is actually supplied. A few boatloads sent through real charity, such as the Friendship Train, may produce a better moral effect than billions used to bolster up the governments supposed to be friendly to our cause."

Increasing prices and wages are dangerous to the Nation, he said, because they create "all kinds of distortions which, if they get bad enough, will seek violent readjustment and may result in a serious depression."

Attributing his figures to President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, Taft said the Nation's exports of goods and services in 1947 will amount to at least 18 billion dollars as compared to imports of eight billion dollars, representing a surplus of exports of about 10 billion dollars.

"Where serious price rises have occurred as in the case of wheat, affecting the whole food scale, the rise is attributed by the experts in the trade directly to purchases for export," Taft said . . . "It is an infinitely greater factor than speculative trading . . .

"If the Administration insists upon the Marshall Plan in its present form, it can never blame anyone else for the steady increase of prices in the United States."

U. S. Will Admit Hungarian Foe Of Communists

The Government has decided to permit Dezso Sulyok, leader of the anti-Communist Hungarian Freedom Party, to come to the United States, Senator Ball (R., Minn.) said yesterday.

Ball told a reporter the State Department informed him it has asked American officials at Bern and Vienna to issue visas to Sulyok and to Count Joseph Palffy, a member of his party, if they are in Switzerland or Austria, as has been reported.

Sulyok last June 12 caused an uproar in the Hungarian Parliament by attacking the Communists, the secret police, the cabinet and Ferenc Nagy, the ousted premier, for their parts in the political crisis under which the Communists assumed control.

French to Use Annam Chief In Indo Plan

Paris, Dec. 30 (NYHT).—The French government plans in the immediate future to open negotiations with former Emperor Bao Dai of Annam in an effort to settle the long dispute and war in Indo-China, it was learned tonight.

Bao Dai, leader of Viet Nam moderates, is now in London where last night he dined with the French ambassador, Rene Massigli.

The terms upon which settlement will be sought have not been decided here. The French government hopes for some sort of an arrangement that would end the fighting in Indo-China and still keep the country within the French union.

Strong voices in the government urge that Bao Dai be offered "independence" under some form of commonwealth formula which would give France special interests in the area.

This stand is loudly opposed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle who sees in any such move the first step towards real independence.

On the other hand, government leaders doubt whether it will be possible to offer Bao Dai much less and still make it possible for him to sell a French plan to the Indo-Chinese over the objections of Ho Chi Minh, who is now conducting operations in an attempt to wrest the area from French control.

Illinois Democrats Chose Stevenson, Douglas for '48

Chicago, Dec. 30 (AP).—Illinois Democratic slate-makers today chose Paul H. Douglas, University of Chicago economist, and Adlai Stevenson, alternate United States delegate to the United Nations, for Senator and Governor, respectively, to head a 1948 State ticket.

United States Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.), characterized the slate as a "real ticket" which resulted from the "most harmonious meeting in Democratic history."

Douglas, in accepting the nomination, said one issue of the campaign will be support of the Marshall Plan "as the best method of fighting communism."

Stevenson probably will face Gov. Dwight Green, present Republican Illinois Governor, and Douglas probably will have Senator C. Wayland Brooks as his opponent.

Both Brooks and Green have been backed by GOP State party chiefs, but neither has formally declared his candidacy.

State Department Official Also on New List of 3131

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Two new public officials, George A. Garrett, Minister to Eire, and Paul F. McGuire, associate division chief of the Office of Financial and Development Policy of the State Department, were revealed as grain traders yesterday.

Both names appeared on a new list of 3131 traders in the wheat market on February 28. The list was made public by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson last night.

Garrett, listed as "short" 10,000 bushels of wheat on that date, got rid of all his holdings before taking over his present diplomatic post, his brokers, Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, quickly reported. The firm said Garrett took a loss of $330 in closing out his account.

Investment Banker

Before he took over his post on July 28—he was appointed May 23—Garrett had never held public office. Before that he was a well-known Washington investment banker.

McGuire declared last night he had been in the market "in a small way" for 15 years. He has never made use of any information made available through his public service, he said.

He said he still was in the market, that "trading is a hobby."

"I see no reason why a public servant should not trade in the market the same as any other person," he said. He added, however, that he "drew the line on using public information."

"Anyone who uses information secured through his position to profit in the market should be put in jail," he said, "I never have. If the American people or Congress lay down a rule that a public servant is a second class citizen to be denied the right to invest his money as he sees fit, that is another question."

No Information From Job

McGuire said he had served as an expert on conditions in "one of the minor countries—but one that couldn't furnish information of value in trading.

"In fact," he said, "it is a net exporter of grains."

Otherwise the new list revealed nothing except that speculating in grain is a risky business for the little man.

Most of those named were small operators. More than two thirds of the 2914 listed as speculators—the rest were hedgers—were "short." In other words, they had sold contracts for future delivery. A "short" is a dealer who is betting the price will go down.

Yet on February 28 the market was going up in leaps and bounds. The closing price of March futures was $2.53 a bushel. About two weeks later, on March 18, it hit $3.05—at that time the highest price wheat had reached in 29 years.

The result was that the long list of "shorts" had to pay heavily to cover that short position. Within 18 days the market had jumped 52 cents a bushel—a loss of $520 on each 1000 bushels.

The wheat market had been booming all during February. March futures closed on February 1 at $2.16⅞. Apparently most of the small traders had figured the rise had worn itself out and that a drop was to be expected, or they got bad advice from their brokers.

Listed were the following from the Washington area who were short on February 28:

From Washington: Robert H. Appleby, Morris Arkin, C. L. Cannon, Frank Cole, Comdr. Henry G. Cooper, Warren H. Davis, George A. Garrett, Will Lyons, Horace N. McLearen, H. H. Plant, O. M. Styron, Dr. Chester R. Uhler, Mrs. Edith M. Voelker and Lieut. Col. Lewis F. Shull.

From nearby Washington: Benjamin B. Bacon, Front Royal, Va.; S. A. Booth, Inc., Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Zelma W. Bryant, Lynchburg, Va.; Walter G. Bush, Huntington, W. Va.; Ralph W. Callender, Harrisonburg, Va.; Carroll Elliott, Easton, Md.; Eve Gordon, Baltimore; A. Leslie Steere, Petersburg, Va.

Those who were "long" on that date were:

From nearby Washington: George E. Allen, jr., Richmond, Va.; L. G. and W. R. Carlton, Richmond; W. L. Dye, Garrett Park, Md.

Thus far 5182 names of traders have been revealed since the list was called for by the Senate Appropriations Committee. About 14,000 names are expected to be released in all.

Agencies Act On New Law

exports that it had done in prewar years.

The new policy will, in general, substitute two new standards.

First, licenses will be given to the exporter who proposes to sell at the lowest price.

Second, more consideration will be given to the destination of the exports. That is, the OIT will be more liable to favor the export of a commodity to the country which needs it most.

Prices Continue Up

Thomas C. Blaisdell, head of the OIT, commended the new policy as contributing more effectively to world recovery. He said it was in line with the desired restoration of free trade, more in private businessmen's hands than through Government purchasing missions.

But he said he doubted if any claim could be made that it would help bring domestic prices down.

Those prices continued to soar. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday that its index of 900 wholesale prices made a new postwar record for the week ended December 20.

They reached an index figure of 162.5, on the base of 1926 as 100. This figure edged close to the all-time record of 167.2 in May of 1920. But then, after World War I, prices turned downward. Today, there is no sign of a reversal of the trend. At the present rate of climb, wholesale prices will exceed the 1920 record by about next February.

Year-End Review

The Commerce Department, in a year-end review, showed the effect of that rising course of prices in 1947. The result has been that even though consumers' incomes were higher, they had to spend a larger part of their income than the year before. Their 1947 income was 11 per cent above 1946, but their outgo was 14 per cent higher than the year before.

Personal savings dropped from 15 billion dollars in 1946, or about 9 per cent of the income people had to spend, to 11 billion dollars in 1947, or just over 6 per cent of their disposable income.

The Commerce Department estimated that the gross national product—the value of goods and services produced in the Nation in 1947—was more than 230 billion dollars, higher than the peak of the war. But, it said, the rise was mostly accounted for by jumps in prices, and not so much by a real increase in the volume of goods.

Prices of industrial products were up almost one fourth from 1946; prices for farm products were more than a fifth higher, and foods were about 30 per cent above the previous year.

Cabinet Named By President Of Panama

Panama City, Panama, Dec. 30 (AP).—President Enrique Adolfo Jimenez, who appointed a new cabinet today, told a news conference he did not believe it was a propitious time to initiate new negotiations for an agreement on United States military bases on Panama soil.

All members of Jimenez' cabinet resigned October 31 during negotiations between Panama and the United States over continued use of defense bases in Panama.

Mario de Diego, who took a prominent part in the lease negotiations as undersecretary in the foreign ministry, was named foreign minister.

Asked if his appointment of De Diego could be considered an indication that Panama was leaving the door open for new negotiations with the United States, Jimenez said he would make no comment except that the present time was not favorable for such discussions.

Spain Executes Two Communists

Madrid, Dec. 30 (AP).—Agustin Zoroa Sanchez, considered the No. 1 Communist in Spain, and Lucas Nunez Bocas, also an accused Communist, were executed yesterday, according to an official announcement today.

They were sentenced to die, with three others, following a trial of 23 persons on December 19.

The official announcement said the three others convicted received commutations of their death sentences to life imprisonment.

[A New York Herald Tribune correspondent reported from Paris that the French National Assembly paused in its budget debate tonight to pass unanimously a resolution asking the French government to protest the two executions.]

Loyalty Program Hit by Durr At Political Science Meeting

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

Federal Communications Commissioner Clifford J. Durr yesterday attacked the President's loyalty program as Communistic in its methods.

He sounded a warning that it may end in "disastrous" failure in a speech before a luncheon meeting that closed the annual meeting of the American Political Science Association at the Statler Hotel.

Sitting only a few feet away was Arthur W. MacMahon, retiring president of the association and a member of the President's Loyalty Review Board.

"I see no wisdom," Durr declared, "in repeating experiments which have failed, particularly when the consequences of failure may be disastrous."

Loyalty programs, he said, have been tried "in other times and in other countries . . . with tragic consequences."

Where Does It Stop?

"We're going to make our country strong by creating suspicion among men; we are out to fight communism by employing the very methods we abhor most in communism.

"If the program applies to every Government worker, what about people in our factories or people who control radio stations? Where can it stop?

"Before we go too far in our present course," Durr warned, "we should earnestly seek to find out where we are going."

Durr, a Government official for 15 years and an FCC member since 1941, said he thought America could not safely "vest in our secret police jurisdiction over" the thoughts of men.

More than 1000 members of APSA closed the 3-day convention after hearing panel discussions that included papers on international trade and legislative-executive relations. They chose Chicago for next year's meeting.

In the panel on international trade, members agreed that a strong economic foundation is essential to world peace and security.

On the question of possible trade friction between the United States and the Soviet Union, John Hazard, of the Columbia University Russian Institute, declared:

"The conclusion seems warranted that state-trading and private enterprise countries can live side by side with no more friction than that normally engendered by large-scale operations and competition."

Participants in the panel on legislative-executive relations heard an appeal that Congress concern itself less with specifying organizational details whenever it legislates an agency into existence or sets up machinery to execute a law.

Paul H. Appleby, dean of Syracuse University and former assistant director of the Budget Bureau, held that general congressional control is desirable, but can lead to evils when the legislative body roams too far afield from matters of policy.

Churchill Advised Mihai to Return

London, Dec. 30 (U.P.).—Handsome King Mihai returned to his tottering throne in Romania last month at the express advice of Winston Churchill, diplomatic circles said today.

Mihai, who left home to attend the wedding of Princess Elizabeth, did not want to go back, but American and British personalities here encouraged him to do so, Romanian royalist sources also said.

Churchill is said to have counseled Mihai, "above all things, a king must be courageous."

His London advisers reportedly warned him failure to return from the royal wedding would play into Communist hands. He was said to have agreed it would be better to be forced into resignation than stay away and be denounced "as an agent of western imperialism."

British experts said with the King's resignation the last obstacle in the way of a Republican Balkan federation had been removed.

King of Romania Abdicates, dictatorship." Diplomatic authorities in Washington said Mihai had been a "brake" on some Communist actions in Romania.)

Three hours after the abdication decision was made known, the Romanian parliament, by unanimous vote of the 256 deputies present, abolished the old monarchial constitution and ratified the government's proclamation of a republic.

By the same vote the parliament approved the creation of a praesidium on the Soviet model.

Dynasty Established in 1866

The present chamber will continue in office until a constituent assembly is selected to draft a new constitution. Within three days all army and civil servants must swear an oath of fealty to the republic.

In his proclamation Mihai said the changes in Romania had made an alteration in the constitution necessary, that the monarchy "constitutes a serious impediment to Romanian developments" and that he was giving "the Romanian people the liberty to choose their new form of state."

The abdication ended a dynasty established in 1866, the last monarchy in the Soviet sphere of eastern Europe and the last throne held by the House of Hohenzollern.

Mihai's renunciation of his throne capped a period of speculation concerning his status here in Romania where he had the dignity of a King but where Communists governed.

He has enjoyed great popularity among the peasants, who considered him a heroic figure. This was especially so after the night in August, 1944, when he took things into his own hands by engineering the arrest of the pro-Nazi government of Marshal Antonescu and his country's switch from the side of the Axis to the Allies.

Outwardly, too, he was popular with many members of the government and with the Russians who had decorated him with the Order of Victory for his part in the 1944 coup d'etat.

He had fought many delaying actions against the Communists, however, and sometimes had won. One of his temporary victories forced the inclusion of all parties in the government until elections were held.

Speculation concerning his status reached its height last month when he flew with his mother, Queen Helen, to London for the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip. En route, he denied rumors that he was seeking exile from Romania.

Twice a King

Mihai I was the son of King Carol II and twice was King. The first time was when he was 6, after Carol renounced his rights as crown prince rather than give up his love affair with the auburn-haired Mme. Elena Lupescu. A regency ruled for three years, 1927 to 1930, until Carol reconsidered his abdication and took over the throne.

In 1940, when the Iron Guard had seized control, Carol was forced to flee amid a hail of Iron Guard bullets against the side of his train. Mihai resumed the throne, though protesting tearfully that he never again wanted to be King.

Carol, who married Lupescu in Rio de Janeiro last July, is now in Portugal.

The text of Mihai's abdication proclamation said:

"Mihai I, by God's grace and national will King of Romania, to all present and future good health.

"Great political, economic and social changes have occurred in the life of the Romanian state and they have created new relations between the main factors of public state life. These relations have ceased to correspond to the fundamental pact, the constitution, and are asking for an immediate and fundamental change.

"This being the case, in full accord with the responsible factors of the country, and fully conscious of my responsibility, I consider that the monarchy does no more correspond with present conditions of our public life, and constitutes a serious impediment to Romanian developments.

"Consequently, fully conscious of the importance of the act I am carrying out in the interest of the Romanian people, I abdicate in my name and in that of my descendants, and I renounce for myself and for them all the prerogatives I had as King of Romania. I give the Romanian people the liberty to choose their new form of state. "MIHAI REX."

Police End Threat Of Fairlington Row

One "incident" yesterday broke the outward calm between plodding pickets and working maintenance personnel at Fairlington, Va., huge apartment development where service workers went on strike December 8.

Arlington police restored order without arrest after pickets alleged that a "strike-breaking fireman" attempted to run them down with a truck bearing "10 or 12 other strikebreakers." Failing in this, they said, he leaped from his cab and made for them, brandishing two clubs.

Police cruising nearby arrived in time to find pickets surrounding their alleged assailant. They recovered one club in the cab of the truck and the second from a picket who said he had wrested it from the driver.

Earlier yesterday, Arlington County Judge Hugh Reid dismissed charges of carrying a concealed weapon against Nathiel Smith, 27, owner of Super Service Trash Co. of 610 Delaware ave. sw. The company signed a permanent contract with Fairmac Corp., owners of the development, after the strike was called.

Hayes F. Adams of 3405 Kemper dr., Arlington, a striking employe, had sworn out the warrant charging Smith with drawing a gun on pickets.

When three of six pickets testifying told the court Smith had the gun in his hand as he started to drive out, the judge ruled concealment had not been proven.

At Fairlington's sister development, 2027-unit McLean Gardens in Northwest Washington, employes were notified yesterday they would receive pay increases and other employment benefits from the owner, also Fairmac Corp., beginning New Year's Day.

Pay increases of $100 to $125 a year, guarantee of a full year's employment at full pay, two weeks' vacation with pay, time and a half for overtime work and free double indemnity life insurance ranging from $1000 to $5000 are being granted, said William Ziegler, general manager.

NLRB Faces Problem on Virginia Law

Virginia's ban on union closed shops has posed an unprecedented problem for the National Labor Relations Board.

The board, after a hearing in Baltimore January 12, will be called upon to decide:

1. Whether a union shop election held in Washington and nearby Maryland can be binding in a contract which covers Virginian employes who did not participate in the voting.

2. Or whether the bargaining area must be divided.

Chain Stores Included

Basis of the problem involves American Federation of Labor employes in Washington chain stores and those within a 25-mile radius.

The two unions are the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen and the Retail Clerks.

The meatcutters have been conducting union shop elections in the District and nearby Maryland, but Virginia employes of the chain stores have cast no ballots, union officials here said yesterday.

Ross Madden, regional director of the NLRB office at Baltimore explained that Virginia law also forbids the closed shop and he has ruled that an NLRB election cannot be held in those stores because the State law takes precedence over the Taft-Hartley Act. The Virginia law went into effect January 16, this year.

Meatcutters Negotiating

The Taft-Hartley law provides that union-shop clauses, under which all employes must join the union, may not be inserted in contracts unless voted for by 50 per cent of the employes.

The January 12 hearing will be conducted by a hearing officer of the board before representatives of the stores and the unions.

The meatcutters' contract, which expired December 2, is now under negotiation; the clerks' does not expire until April 1. Washington and nearby Maryland employes of Safeway, Acme and Food Fair stores voted heavily for the union in elections held December 19 and 20. The Atlantic and Pacific elections are scheduled for January 9.

None of the clerks' union elections have been scheduled.

Truman Drops CAB's Landis

Hill if Mr. Truman sends his nomination to the Senate.

Thomas K. Finletter, chairman of President Truman's Air Policy Commission, also was mentioned in connection with the post. He was reported to have the backing of some air line executives.

Reports that Mr. Truman might drop Landis from the board, which makes the rules for American aviation, had long been current in Washington.

Executives of some of the big air lines were known to be opposed to his reappointment. This opposition, according to talk in the industry, was based partly on what they regarded as Landis' "arbitrary" attitude, partly on his disposition to give new nonscheduled airlines (some of them operated by former GIs) a chance to get in on the air freight business, and partly on his views regarding air safety.

Friends of Landis said last night that they thought it was significant that the White House had not made public the report of President's Special Board of Inquiry on Air Safety, which was sent to Mr. Truman yesterday. This report, they said, would make suggestions that would cost the air lines "a lot of money." Landis headed the inquiry.

Milton W. Arnold, vice president of the Air Transport Association and a member of the Air Safety Board, disagreed with the majority and submitted a minority report.

The Air Line Pilots Association, made up of 7000 of the country's pilots, issued a statement yesterday urging reappointment of Landis. This was before the White House announcement on the veteran New Dealer.

David L. Behncke, president of the association, said in Chicago that a "powerful lobby" had been established to block Landis' reappointment. He said the pilots were backing Landis "in the interests of improving the safety of the air-traveling public and against the use of power politics." He added:

"As chairman of the CAB, Mr. Landis has done more in the brief period of his appointment, 16 months, than all of his predecessors combined have done to promote air safety. Surely such a strong stand for safety could not fail to make enemies for Mr. Landis . . ."

Behncke sharply criticized the action of the Air Transport Association, made up of the air lines, in refusing to subscribe to the report sent to the White House by Landis in his role as head of the Air Safety Board.

President Truman appointed Landis as CAB chairman in June, 1946, to fill the unexpired term of L. Welch Pogue, who had resigned to enter private practice.

It was through Landis' connections at Harvard University that he first came to Washington back in the earliest days of the New Deal. He was then 34, a tall, gaunt-faced man with a reputation of being "bright as hell."

Student of Frankfurter

Felix Frankfurter, now Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, who had been Landis' law professor at Harvard, recommended him to President Roosevelt. As a member of the Federal Trade Commission, his first appointment under the New Deal, Landis helped draft the securities and exchange control laws. Later he succeeded Joseph P. Kennedy as chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission.

In those days Landis was known as one of "Felix Frankfurter's hot dogs."

When he resigned as chairman of the SEC in 1937 to become dean of the Harvard Law School, FDR told him in a letter that he was leaving behind "great respect and appreciation for the scholar in government."

Landis came back to Washington in 1942 to reorganize and head the Office of Civilian Defense. In 1943 he was made American director of economic operatoins in the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Corks to Pop Greeting to '48; Watch Night Rites Planned

Tonight corks will pop, spirits will flow (oh, so freely) and thousands will sing "Auld Lang Syne" as they begin incubating Washington's annual mass hangover.

Hotels and night clubs say they'll be jammed this New Year's Eve, and that prices will be about the same as last year.

And, as could be expected, business has been brisk in the retail liquor stores, an indication that there will be the usual large number of parties in private homes in the District tonight.

Police Are Alerted

It won't be an easy night for police. They have been placed on emergency cal land no leaves, other than those of an emergency nature or those regularly scheduled, will be granted.

Lieut. Howard V. Corvell, police personnel officer, said the men have been ordered to keep an extra sharp watch for dunken drivers.

New Year's Eve will not be all wine and wassail. Many churches in Greater Washington will hold Watch Night services as a prelude to the customary open house by clergymen and their families tomorrow.

Tomorrow is the Feast of Circumcision, a Holy Day of Obligation for Catholics.

Government Holiday

All District and Government employes, except those needed for emergencies, will have a holiday tomorrow. Where possible, Government workers will be permitted to take one day of their annual leave to stretch their holiday to four days.

Railroads and bus lines do not look for travel today to equal that of last Wednesday. The same holds for the airlines. However, they do expect a rush Saturday and Sunday when students begin returning to school and workers with four-day holidays take off for home.

Many civic and private organizations will hold special New Year's Eve parties tonight or special programs tomorrow.

The District Chapter of the Catholic War Veterans has scheduled a reception and dance tonight at 8 at the Holy Comforter auditorium, 15 and East Capital sts.

The Interstate Society will hold a dance in the ballroom of the Washington Hotel, beginning at 9:30 p. m.

And these are some of the programs listed for tomorrow:

The Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, will hold a reception at its headquarters, 2015 Massachusetts ave. nw., from 5 to 8 p. m.

The YMCA, at 1736 G st. nw., will have an open house with everything from a tea dance to jiu jitsu exhibitions. The program starts at 2 p. m. and the final event begins at 9.

Members of the Michigan State Society and the California State Society will gather atop the Washington Hotel to listen to the Rose Bowl game from Pasadena. Admission for the party, which begins at 4:30 p. m., is 50 cents.

Boost in Children's Bus Fare Opposed

Montgomery Board Won't Fight Plea For Other Increases

Montgomery County commissioners will fight to keep lower bus fares for school children, but will not oppose other increases asked by the Capital Transit Co.

School children and adults, on some lines, now may purchase tickets at lower fares than straight cash. Capital Transit wants all fares in cash on a zone basis—5 cents for each mile and a half.

At a meeting yesterday in Rockville, the Montgomery commissioners instructed Albert E. Conradis, their public utilities agent, to oppose any change in the reduced rates now granted school children. President Brooke Johns said the board was not opposed generally to the higher rates requested, and told Conradis to seek a "compromise" with the company by asking retention of lower rates for school children.

Since the fare increase proposal was made public, several civic groups have voiced opposition. The Kensington View Citizens Association wrote Johns the increase would force Kensington citizens to pay 60 cents a round trip from their homes to downtown Washington, a boost of 67 per cent for those who now purchase tickets.

Reduced bus rates are available for Washington school children under an act of Congress which does not apply to Maryland.

The Maryland Public Service Commission will hear the fare increase application between January 7-9.

Johns announced he would ask the State Roads Commission today to expedite widening of Georgia and Wisconsin ave. "bottlenecks" in Silver Spring and Bethesda.

Wisconsin ave. is to be widened from Old Georgetown rd. to the Naval Hospital and Johns said he would ask for widening of Georgia ave. from Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory to Wheaton.

elevators in the South, East and West Buildings.

4. Ask the Corporation Counsel what changes in legislation would be required to permit immediate placement of disturbed patients (who comprise about 30 per cent of Gallinger's psychiatric patients) in St. Elizabeths Hospital.

5. Instruct Gallinger officials to reassign renovation funds and nursing and attendant personnel so that the psychiatric service will get its fair share.

6. Direct hospital officials to work out recruitment problems so personnel may be obtained to fill authorized jobs.

Fowler's report recommended that no major structural improvements be made, no salary boosts granted, and no additional nurses or attendants be authorized.

Commissioner Guy Mason said: "I'm satisfied that this is the beginning (of improvement) if they (hospital officials) do their part."

He said he still felt that a new psychiatric building will be needed. But if disturbed patients can be moved to St. Elizabeths, he declared, "we probably will need only a one-million-dollar building instead of a large one costing two to three million."

Present psychiatric quarters then might be used for an alcoholic clinic, he added.

Called Hospital "Stepchild"

Mason joined Fowler in charging that the psychiatric division had been "neglected" in favor of other services at Gallinger. Hospital officials treated the psychiatric unit like "a red-headed stepchild," he declared.

Dr. Sweeney replied that the hospital has been "cramping other services to provide for the psycho." He said that 25 per cent of new nursing recruits were sent to the psychiatric division, "although it bears only 12 per cent of our patient load."

Both Health Officer George C. Ruhland and Dr. Gilbert declined to comment.

Fowler noted that Dr. Gilbert was "continuously overwhelmed" by his duties as alienist, "with the result that he has not been able aggressively to emphasize to the hospital authorities the needs of the psychiatric department."

Dr. Gilbert came to Washington in 1923 and served on the medical and psychiatric staffs at St. Elizabeths Hospital before becoming chief psychiatrist at Gallinger in 1931.

Fowler Rips Into Report

He became alienist, in addition to his other duties, in 1933 and has performed both jobs ever since.

Fowler submitted a supplemental paper in which he ripped Monday's report by Dr. Wortis, director of Bellevue Psychiatric Hospital and a United States Public Health Service consultant, who made a three-day survey of Gallinger's psychiatric division in November.

Fowler charged that Dr. Wortis was "not acquainted with the facts" when he indicated that little had been done as a result of two previous surveys. Congress appropriated money to cover 17 of 21 recommendations, while 27 became the responsibility of hospital officials without added appropriations, he declared.

He pointed out that Gallinger had saved $500,000 from appropriations in 1947 and $154,891 up to November 30 this fiscal year "due to inability to provide the services as authorized by the Congress."

Dr. Wortis said in New York last night that he had "no comment" to make on Fowler's charges.

Fulton Lewis Carries Co-Op Fight to Court

Richmond, Va., Dec. 30 (AP).—Fulton Lewis, jr., radio commentator and part-time Maryland farmer, filed a petition in Richmond Chancery Court today for a writ of mandamus against Southern States Co-Operatives, Inc., to compel the co-op to recognize him as a member.

The petition was made returnable January 15 at 10 a. m.

Lewis was ousted from membership in Southern States at the annual stockholders meeting last month. The stockholders voted by some 2000 to 7 to ratify a previous resolution of the board of directors removing him from membership for conduct regarded as detrimental to the organization's best interests.

ed, board members said they would undertake the preparation of a drawing showing the location of walls at the time of the collapse so that Atkinson could further relate what the interior looked like. They disclosed that their measurements indicated the wall was about 27 feet 6 inches long and therefore if Atkinson's measurements were correct the remaining pier would have to be more than 13 feet wide.

The photograph, a copy of which was obtained by The Washington Post, indicates the remaining pier is much narrower, board members said after the hearing.

A second witness, George F. Linkins, who supervised rentals in the building from 1933 to September, 1945, said that apparently a wall separating a wing of a restaurant then located there from a kitchen had been removed.

He made the statement after viewing the photograph. The City Finance Co. moved into the corner street floor location in September of this year when the restaurant was discontinued. The loan firm took over the floor space previously used by the restaurant and its kitchens.

Gallinger Mess

The most astonishing thing about Dr. S. Bernard Wortis' highly critical report on the psychopathic department at Gallinger Hospital is that it exposes, in a little more compelling language, many of the same conditions disclosed in similar surveys in 1938 and 1944. In recommending improvements, Gallinger officials each year have called attention to the deplorably overburdened and inadequate facilities for care of mental patients. Yet, although there has been some small improvement recently, little has been done to alleviate basic deficiencies that have obtained for a decade. Gallinger's budget has been blithely pared, first by the Commissioners and then by Congress. The pertinent question is: Will this blistering commentary by the director of New York's Bellevue Psychiatric Hospital at last stir the apathy that has led to pigeonholing of previous recommendations?

The decision of the Commissioners to remove Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert from his job as head of the psychopathic division and the denunciation of the hospital administration by District Budget Officer Fowler are discouraging evidence to the contrary. This attempt to shift the blame falls far short of tackling the real difficulty and lends weight to Dr. Wortis' wry observation, "the present survey, like those before it, cannot be a substitute for adequate buildings and staff."

It should occasion no pride among the citizens of Washington, or indeed among the legislators who make their temporary home in the Nation's Capital, to have Gallinger's physchopathic division compared with the worst conditions Dr. Wortis found in Austria, a country ravaged by war. Specifically, he condemns the failure to segregate patients as to illness. Mental cases are dumped together with alcoholics, tubercular patients and surgery cases. He condemns also inadequate nursing service for mental patients, insufficient psychiatric personnel, run-down buildings with depressing, barnlike wards, equipment in bad repair and the lack of any connection with a psychiatric clinic or with the psychiatric departments of local medical schools.

Some of these defects should be correctable by more vigorous efforts on the part of the hospital's administrators. That should be true of cooperation with the medical schools. Similarly, there should be no serious bar to a better arrangement with St. Elizabeths Hospital for quicker acceptance of mental cases requiring long-term treatment. Basically, however, the most serious deficiencies at Gallinger are attributable simply to lack of money. Obviously additional outlays will be necessary to build new buildings and to augment medical and nursing staffs which are now working to the limit of their capacity. Even with such funds, it may not be possible to add enough new personnel immediately because of the general shortage of trained psychiatrists and nurses.

In a sense the conditions at Gallinger are the result of the same public indifference and neglect that has characterized treatment of mental patients throughout the country. That neglect is tremendously costly in terms of broken lives that could be repaired with proper care promptly administered. A deficiency appropriation by Congress could, of course, help meet the immediate situation at Gallinger, and the Commissioners could make up for some of their past lethargy by energetic efforts to obtain it. But in the last analysis the only permanent remedy is an aroused and indignant public.

End Of The USO

To many a serviceman during the war, a USO club spelled the difference between loneliness and a feeling that he was not forgotten. The USO's contribution to that intangible thing known as morale was enormous. It was not only a home away from home that sponsored parties and helped GIs get acquainted; it provided first-class entertainment, even in combat areas; it offered counsel when needed; it helped stir new interest in foreign lands where GIs were stationed; it performed a host of services from furnishing lodging to sewing on buttons. It marshaled many prominent persons who gave willingly of their time. Not the least of its accomplishments was the practical demonstration it gave of the ability of six organizations of divergent background to work together in a common purpose, supported by public donations. The USO was in the best sense the effort of a grateful Nation to remember the men who were serving it in time of crisis.

Now the United Service Organizations are going out of business. As the need decreased, operations had been gradually curtailed from the 4000-club peak during the war to around 200. The four remaining Washington clubs closed their doors last Friday, and the formal liquidation of the USO will take place next week at a White House ceremony. The news of the USO's passing cannot be viewed without nostalgia by the millions of veterans who learned to regard it as peculiarly their own agency. That was just what the USO intended. It accomplished its mission with flying colors.

Wallace's Blind Alley

The address in which Henry Wallace launched his independent campaign for the Presidency in 1948 makes a strong bid for first place among the most muddled utterances ever made by aspirants to that high position. The former Vice President takes a militant stand for "peace, progress and prosperity." Like the minister to whom Calvin Coolidge listened, he is "agin' sin." But the few sentences in his speech which break away from this messianic complex become so entangled in confusion and contradictions that we suspect even his most enthusiastic disciples will be driven back to his grandiose generalities.

The United States will not be fully secure, Mr. Wallace says, until there is real peace between this country and the Soviet Union and until there is an international police force stronger than the military establishment of any nation. Yet he frowns upon security measures and denounces universal military training as if every threat to peace had been removed. His call for a "genuine effort to bring about a peaceful settlement of differences" between the United States and Russia embodies all the naivete that might be expected from the proverbial visitor just arriving from Mars. Where has Mr. Wallace been for the last two years? Is it possible that he doesn't know that the Administration has exhausted every device known to diplomacy in trying to bring about an understanding with the Russians?

One of the few concrete suggestions in the speech is Mr. Wallace's demand for a "United Nations disarmament conference to rid humanity for all time of the threat not only of atomic bombs but also of all other methods of mass destruction." He utterly ignores the patient and conscientious efforts of the State Department and the United Nations to secure international control of atomic energy as the first essential step to world disarmament. To harp on disarmament without a word about these futile negotiations is the most flagrant sort of demagogy.

Even the Marshall Plan for the reconstruction of war-devastated Europe is scorned by the former Vice President on the ground that it will help to "divide Europe into two warring camps." Because Russia is resisting this humanitarian scheme to aid European peoples in maintaining their independence and freedom, it becomes, as viewed through the aura of bitterness surrounding Mr. Wallace, a reactionary and warmongering policy. Apparently Mr. Wallace would have the United States disarm itself, abandon its former allies in western Europe and withdraw every restraint to the spread of police state regimes. And such a pathetic retreat of democracy in the face of militant fascism of the Moscow brand is advanced under the slogan of "Peace, Progress and Prosperity."

"We face the future," Mr. Wallace declared in a moment of unguarded candor, "unfettered by any principle but the general welfare." Since every group that makes any bid for political support claims devotion to the public welfare, this seems tantamount to breaking away from all principle. Apparently freedom and self-rule are no longer worth fighting for. Most of the objectives of World War II must be abandoned in favor of precisely the sort of appeasement that horrified Mr. Wallace himself in Hitler's heyday. Instead of joining with Mr. Wallace's third party in this sort of emotional spree, we suspect that many people outside of the jubilant Republican circles will feel a good deal of sadness that a man in whom so many hopes were once centered has followed his animosity and his delusions into such a dismal blind alley.

Normalcy

Perhaps you have said to yourself that these are truly apocalyptic times and that the further course of human events has become utterly unpredictable, that the universe has entered upon a phase in which there are no longer any rules, norms, criteria or standards. Perhaps it has seemed to you in more despondent moments that, what with test-tube babies, nuclear fissions, current fashions in millinery and the Messrs. Henry A. Wallace and William Saroyan, this world can never again be what it was.

This, it seems to us, is grossly to underestimate the conservative factor in human history. The more things change, as the much-quoted proverb has it, the more they turn out to be the same old stuff. Thus the long-advertised miracle of television, which was supposed to bring the whole pageant of contemporary history into everybody's living room, turns out to be almost indistinguishable from the old, hand-reeled movies of about the year A. D. 1904. And if, as is sometimes argued, television is still in its infancy, what reason is there to suppose that in maturity it will give us anything very different from what we now get from Hollywood, Broadway and the radio companies? There is reason to believe that the human race is comprised of incorrigible Bourbons, who learn nothing and forget nothing and are never so happy as in walking in the ways of their fathers and calling it progress.

For example, any seasoned journalist who has the virtue of frankness will assure you that as long as sea serpents continue to turn up at summer resorts or pathologists continue to unveil the mysteries of the common cold, the world cannot be said to have wandered far from its wonted ways. As for sea serpents, at least two have been reported in the year now ending, and, as for common colds, it was only the other day that two eminent local scientists of the United States Public Health Service announced that they had succeeded in hatching common colds in a laboratory and in inoculating various inmates of the Lorton Reformatory with them. Doubtless this is a more progressive, efficient and scientific way of getting a cold than by riding in a crowded bus or waiting for one in a high wind at Union Station Plaza. The main point, however, is that such experiments are part of a perfectly familiar universe in which we feel perfectly at home. They help to restore to us that "sense of security" which, the psychologists tell us, is the real, true secret of happiness.

French Inflation

The United States has more than a friendly interest in the outcome of the French government's plans for curbing inflation by reducing the volume of currency in circulation and balancing the budget. For our efforts to promote recovery in France and other nations of western Europe will be thwarted unless the countries given aid under the Marshall Plan are able to stabilize their currencies and restore the confidence of their people in those currencies.

Monetary and fiscal reforms are essential, as the Department of State points out, to "stimulate production and encourage an orderly exchange of goods between city and country." That is the ultimate aim of the French government's plan for a forced loan and special supertaxes designed to take the equivalent of 800 million dollars out of circulation, the proceeds to be used by the government solely for reconstruction purposes. After being forced to grant wage increases to placate striking workers, it is all the more imperative for France to adopt fiscal reforms that would prevent further price increases leading to new demands for wage increases and a recurrence of strikes.

The French method of approach (which is pledged in the Paris report of the Marshall Plan) is promising, for it strikes at the root cause of inflation—too much purchasing power in the hands of the people in relation to the amount of consumable goods. Whether it will prove adequate is, however, doubtful. Opposition from both right-wing and left-wing members of the Assembly has compelled the government to grant extensive exemptions from the supertaxes in order to lighten the burden placed on the peasants and small businesses. Consequently, the deflation program has been seriously weakened before it has been given a trial.

If it should prove ineffective, or if the present government should be overthrown because of the resentment aroused by the attempt to fight inflation by forthright means—the only means that offer hope for the future—the consequences may well be serious. For, unless checked, continued inflation of the currency will inevitably result in a renewal of labor disturbances with accompanying political disorders. If that should happen, it would be futile for the United States to waste its substance trying to help a nation that refuses to make the sacrifices required to carry through essential fiscal and monetary reforms.

Grain For Liquor

Secretary Anderson's decision to allocate limited amounts of grain for liquor manufacture during January represents a compromise between the demands of the distillers and the demands for food conservation. We still feel that in view of the continuing critical need for grain to feed hungry people abroad it would have been better to continue the distillery shutdown through January, especially since it would have caused the liquor industry no real injury. It is certainly true, however, that the 2,450,000-bushel limit decreed by Mr. Anderson is a material saving over the 8,584,000 bushels consumed last January and the 8,164,000 bushels used during the wild period in October before the voluntary shutdown took effect.

Now the principal concern is that the allocations be equitable. Mr. Anderson has rightly included in allocations all grain used by distillers since the voluntary shutdown ended December 24. That is only fair to the public-spirited members of the industry who observed the request to continue the suspension during the last week of December; the difficulty is that some distillers who ignored the request may already have exceeded their January allocation. That grain, of course, cannot be recaptured.

As for the formula itself, it appears to favor old-line producers unduly. In effect, moreover, it sanctions the hoarding of grain, since it is not figured on actual production but rather on the amount of grain purchased. Although the small independents are protected by special minimum allocations, the net result of the formula is to discriminate against the introduction of new competition into the industry. A fairer procedure for future use, we believe, would be one based on sales during a free period. While this would not recognize fully the problem of the newer entrants in the field, it would have the advantage of making the public, through its purchases, the ultimate determiner of allocations.

This procedure already has been considered by Secretary Anderson, and we hope that it will be implemented if, as he thinks probable, regulation will be necessary over a long period. If such need materializes, Congress will do well to extend allocation to include all users of grain.

Spreading Prejudice

The situation in Panama reminds me of a very unpleasant experience which I, a colored woman, had when I studied in Europe many years ago. It was caused by the same determination of the prejudice-ridden representatives of the dominant race in the U. S. A. to teach other countries to humiliate, handicap and harass nonwhite people as that which resulted in the decision of the Panama National Assembly unanimously to refuse to release the bases to the United States. Panama had been fed up on the Jim Crowism insisted upon by the representatives of the U. S. A.

When I was studying in Berlin I was urged by some of my Oberlin College friends, who knew me as a student there, to come to the pension where they were stopping. I had been in this pension only a short time when the landlady told me she would like to see me. "Are you a Negro, Fraulein Church?" she asked me, as soon as I entered the room. "Why do you ask me that?" I replied. "Because," she explained, "there are two young men from the United States who are studying medicine here and they say you are a Negro. And they also tell me that if I let a Negro stay in my pension no self-respecting white people from the United States will come here. They are from the City of Baltimore."

I explained the conditions existing in the United States. I told the landlady I would leave her pension immediately, so that she would no longer be embarrassed by my presence. But it was hard for me to stick to that decision. "Now that I understand the reason the young men wanted me to cast you out," she said, "I want very much to have you stay."

Not all United States citizens who travel in foreign lands are bitten by the prejudice bug, I am glad to say. Although I made it a rule not to thrust myself upon my countrymen when I lived abroad, since I did not know what might happen, I have had some delightful experiences with them when we have casually met each other now and then.

But every time I have gone abroad it has greatly pained me to see how unworthily, not to say disgracefully, this country, called the greatest democracy on earth, has been misrepresented by its prejudice-ridden citizens who flout the very principles upon which this Government was built. In the countries which they visit they try to teach the citizens to look down upon colored people with scorn and contempt, preach the doctrine of the colored man's inferiority.

As a colored woman who loves her country, I wish something could be done to show how short-sighted and dangerous it is to cause nonwhite people to hate the United States as they do in Panama, because of her injustice to and contempt of them in this world where there are four or five human beings whose complexions are colored to every one whose face is white.

Mr. Hume's Reviews

Paul Hume's criticism of Margaret Truman's Washington recital was a tribute to democracy. Last Monday night, Mr. Hume sat—probably just a few feet away from the Chief Executive of our Nation—in the presence of diplomats, high Government officials, social leaders, and, perhaps, a few of the common people. Yet, despite what must have been the weight of official Washington looming over him, he could see and hear Miss Truman only as an artist. And he wrote his criticism only about her artistry.

His article makes no mention of the artist's background, or of her family, or of anything except as it is related to her musical performance. That the article appears as it was written, and causes no outcry is real evidence of our growth in the spirit of democracy. There is no cry of "Off with his head!" or, in the tempo of the times, "Away with his job!" The review is accepted for its merit and for its judgment of a musical evening.

If this be democracy, it's a mighty fine thing.

GHERETEIN R. WILSON.

I want to express my appreciation for the extremely courageous review of Paul Hume on Miss Margaret Truman's concert. There are many times when Mr. Hume does not see eye to eye with me in regard to singers' abilities but at least one has the feeling that he has honest convictions and is willing to state them.

I hope that Mr. Hume will be told that his reviews are greatly appreciated by many music lovers in Washington and that now his courage in writing as he honestly thinks along with his musical wisdom will be more than ever appreciated.

"Delaying Action"

You are to be congratulated for your excellent editorial of December 23 on the school board controversy in Arlington County.

Is it possible that the old school board has something to cover up? Are they afraid to turn their records over to the newly elected board for fear of unsavory disclosures? If not, why the last-minute delaying action? If the old school board had any genuine doubts about the constitutionality of the school board election they should have brought action before the county went to the expense of conducting a referendum last June. If they had genuine doubts about the constitutionality of the statute certainly it is hard to see how four members of the old board could have been candidates in the school board election in November.

Whatever the motives back of the delaying action the voters of Arlington must get at the root of the problem. Such a flagrant disregard for the will of the majority cannot be tolerated.

"Road To War"

I note in The Washington Post recently that Bob Hope is considering another "Road" picture, but has run out of title ideas and would welcome suggestions from the public.

May I suggest that, in view of the trend of world events it might be both timely and appropriate for Mr. Hope to title his next picture The Road to War?

Liberalized Retirement Bill

On February 19, 1947, Senators Langer of North Dakota and Chavez of New Mexico introduced a bipartisan retirement bill known as S. 637. This bill has been reported out favorably by the Senate Civil Service Committee, having met with objections from only one Senator, John J. Williams of Delaware, who objected to it on the basis of its cost.

The Government actuaries arrived at a cost of 105 million dollars by the false assumption that there would always be two million employes in the Federal Government (the number is now 1,766,600 in the entire United States as of October 1, 1947), and that Government employes will die at an average age of 52, leaving two dependents. Both of these assumptions are fantastic. When another set of actuaries was assigned the task of producing a cost based on actual conditions it was found that the liberalized bill would cost the Government little or nothing.

This is largely due to the fact that increasing the deduction from employes' salaries by 1 per cent, and decreasing the interest paid by 1 per cent on monies withdrawn from the retirement fund, will pay for the cost of the bill. Furthermore, many would be induced to retire earlier than planned due to the liberalized features of the bill and those retiring would in many instances be replaced by new employes at a lesser salary.

However, due to the anxiety of its sponsors to secure the passage of the bill during this session of the Congress and in order to meet the objections as to its possible cost, the bill was rewritten and introduced in the House of Representatives on April 28, 1947, by Representative Stevenson of Wisconsin as H. R. 3232. The House Civil Service Committee revised H. R. 3232 in committee and it was introduced by Mr. Stevenson as H. R. 2147 and was passed by the House of Representatives on July 16 without a dissenting vote. On July 22 Senator Chavez introduced this revised version of the original Langer-Chavez retirement bill in the Senate. It is now known as the Stevenson bill, H. R. 2147, in its present form.

The revisions in the retirement bill were expected to facilitate administration and to make the law more readily understandable to the average employe. It will substitute two retirement formulas for four in the present law, two annuity options for four, and provide liberalization of existing provisions in certain respects, including:

An increase of $300, or 25 per cent, whichever is the lesser, to those already retired. This will average an increase of 18 per cent to retired employes.

An increase of approximately 20 per cent in future annuities.

Survivorship benefits for widows and children.

Elimination of the tontine charge.

As previously explained, the cost of the bill is reduced by increasing retirement deductions from 5 per cent to 6 per cent, reducing the interest rate from 4 per cent to 3 per cent on funds withdrawn from the retirement fund, deferring the right of an employe who has resigned to vested title in an annuity until after 10 years of service instead of 5 and with the annuity beginning at 65 instead of at 62.

The sponsors of the bill believed that they had a sizable majority in the Senate in favor of this revised bill. However, Senator Taft, who headed the policy committee which had the authority to decide what bills should be considered in the closing hours of the Congress, denied Senator Langer's request for its consideration. Since the bill has already passed the House of Representatives without a dissenting vote, when the Congress reconvenes in January (if not earlier) it must be given precedence over new legislation and should be placed near the top of the calendar.

The actuarial costs will be presented to the Senate Civil Service Committee and it is believed that even the few opponents of the bill may remove their objections to its passage. INEZ JUSTUS.

Tax Impetus To Wedlock

By Malvina Lindsay

Split Incomes

ONE WAY to beat taxes without death is to get married. But the trick works only if you find a partner whose income plus your own is substantially more than $5000. Thus can you get tax relief afforded in the split-income provision of the new tax bill on which Congress soon is expected to act.

Single men and women—bachelors, spinsters, widows and those divorced—are discovering that the split-income provision is an indirect tax on their single blessedness. Those opposing it ask, "Why not tax us openly and directly in the Mussolini method?"

A law allowing husbands and wives to split joint incomes for tax purposes would be a boon to higher-salaried couples. A childless couple with net annual income of $50,000 would gain $6320. Even those in the $7500 class would make nice savings. Single persons, many of whom help relatives, say this is discriminatory. So do couples whose incomes are $5000 and less.

THE SPLIT-INCOME proposal would decrease Federal tax revenue about 600 million dollars annually. Who, ask the unmarried and the low-income people, would pay the difference? What is more, the idea of helping the well-to-do married seems to be growing. The American Bar Association has suggested a statute permitting wealthy childless couples to divide their estates so that estate taxes may be paid on a 50 per cent basis.

But, say proponents of split-income taxes, the unmarried and the low-income couples will benefit by the proposed raising of exemptions for themselves and dependents from $500 to $600. They also will share in percentage tax reductions. The tax bill supporters also point out that since 12 community property States allow husbands and wives to split incomes for Federal taxes, it is unfair that couples in other States should pay more. And all sorts of legal confusion will arise if noncommunity States try, at behest of their citizens, to change their tax laws.

This still leaves the unmarried exactly where they were in relation to those who may find that two can be taxed more cheaply than one. What is more, many unmarried taxpayers have long borne an extra tax burden in not being allowed adequate deductions for their contributions to the support of others. Since those they help aren't husbands, wives, or offspring, but usually partial dependents, as parents, sisters, brothers, nieces, nephews, much of their assistance gets no tax recognition. They get tax credit for contributing to an organization, but not to a sick brother-in-law.

YET THE single person on an income level with those who will benefit by split-income taxing often carries heavy family responsibility (which may be why he or she has not married), is usually expected to be the mainstay of elderly parents, and to help educate young relatives.

Single women, particularly, share their pay checks. The Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor found in a wartime survey that of every 100 single women workers who lived with their families, 93 contributed to family expenses—to the extent of nearly half their pay. Of every 100 widows and divorcees who lived with their families, 97 contributed to family expenses—71 per cent of their salaries going that way. It has also been found that a large proportion of single women living alone help relatives financially. One of war's tolls has been an increase of widows and divorced women. These, of course, get no benefit from split-income proposals—nor do their children.

Some tax experts admit that the split-income proposal is discriminatory and that it will reduce Federal revenue from those best able to pay it. But they maintain there is no alternative in view of the confusion resulting from present operation of the system in some States. This may be true. Yet it would seem a fairer balance to reduce exemptions or other reductions of those favored by the plan and to broaden exemptions for those who are not.

Wallace's Followers

Alice E. Hatch, in her letter of December 26, speaks of Henry Wallace as being "ahead of his times," and says that "we have always destroyed our prophets—our leaders with vision—so, of course, Mr. Wallace's voice will be lost in the war cries of the 'realists.'"

I would like to remind Miss Hatch that Mr. Wallace also has a large number of "realists" among his following—the "materialistic realists," or Communists, or Red Fascists, whichever she would prefer to call them—who seem to be fully as enthusiastic about Henry Wallace as she is.

The Communist masqueraders have gleefully donned their "liberal" masks and have assumed the character of "Wallace supporters," not because they believe in any "limited liberal objectives" which remain within the context of American democracy, but only because Mr. Wallace believes, as did Petkov, Maniu and Mihalajxyck, that "cooperation with Russia" is possible and desirable.

Perhaps what neither Mr. Wallace nor Miss Hatch understands is that the term, "cooperation with Russia," is synonymous with "cooperation with communism" in the minds of all Communists, Russian or otherwise.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

A-Feudin' and A-Fightin'

HENRY A. WALLACE has now at last, after months of coyness, consented to head the Communist-managed third party movement. The real political meaning of the Wallace candidacy is neatly illustrated by the current mission of Democratic Party Chairman Howard McGrath and Executive Director Gael Sullivan. McGrath and Sullivan have departed for California to try to bring some semblance of order out of the chaos in which that State's Democratic Party is engulfed. The corrosion which has bitten into the California Democratic organization has also afflicted, though in less violent form, the organization in other States. If this were not the case, the Wallace candidacy would be no more than the meaningless gesture of a bitter, self-deluded man. And the confidence almost amounting to smugness with which the Republicans view their chances in 1948, despite the remarkable Democratic comeback in the public opinion polls, would be considerably reduced.

The immediate impetus behind the McGrath-Sullivan pilgrimage has been the resignation of President Harry Truman's inconvenient friend, Ed Pauley, as Democratic National Committeeman from California. It has been widely assumed that Pauley's resignation stemmed directly from the public revelations of his profitable activities in the grain market. These revelations may have given Pauley an extra push. But in point of fact, Pauley had been anxious to leave the post for some months, provided only that his job would not be inherited by the late President's oldest son, James Roosevelt, for whom Pauley feels little or no affection.

ROOSEVELT IS State Democratic chairman, and he and Pauley have been engaged in a bitter feud for months. Pauley's resignation has by no means ended this row between the two most prominent California Democratic leaders. It has only served to bring the row to such a boil that McGrath and Sullivan have had to bustle out to California to try to prevent the whole Democratic Party organization there from falling apart like the one-horse shay.

The California Democrats (like the national Democratic Party) suffer from a kind of political and geographical schizophrenia. In general, the split is between north and south and left and right, and it is further complicated by the splintering off of the extreme left, led by the ambitious Robert Kenney, Henry Wallace's California henchman. Roosevelt's special bailiwick is southern California and the non-Communist left wing of the Democratic Party, largely concentrated in the south.

The south delivers more than 60 per cent of California's Democratic votes, and Roosevelt's strength in the south is reasonably solid. Roosevelt would thus seem to be in a fair way to control the State delegation to the Democratic National Convention. He is reported to be eager to lead the delegation, and to have his name advanced as California's favorite son for the Democratic vice presidential nomination. But he is scheduled to lose his post as State chairman in July, by a special California arrangement which rotates the chairmanship between northern and southern Californians. If he could step into Pauley's shoes as Democratic National Committeeman, his position would be immensely strengthened.

THAT IS precisely what Pauley and his allies are determined at all costs to avoid. Pauley has a firm alliance with a number of regular Democratic organization men in northern California. The Pauley forces favor Senator Sheridan Downey of "ham and eggs" fame, to succeed Pauley as National Committeeman. Downey has already stepped heavily on Roosevelt's toes, in connection with a California issue involving power and grazing rights, and this has especially endeared him to the Pauley faction. Downey, however, by no means hankers for the job. He may be persuaded to try for it, if only to prevent Roosevelt from filling the vacuum left by Pauley's departure. Meanwhile, a feverish search, as yet unsuccessful, for other acceptable successors to Pauley is being carried on by Pauley and his allies.

This Democratic cat-fight naturally affords considerable satisfaction to the California Republicans, safely united behind their all-conquering champion, Gov. Earl Warren. It also pleases the cohorts of Henry Wallace and the maverick Robert Kenney. There is no doubt at all that if McGrath and Sullivan somehow manage to glue the feuding Democrats together, the Wallaceites will be snowed under. Indeed, it is generally agreed that in that event Kenney will return lamblike to the regular Democratic fold, leaving Wallace to the cold comfort of the Communists and California's considerable lunatic fringe. Significantly, such influential left-wingers as Representatives Chester Hollifield and Helen Gahagan Douglas have evinced no desire to leap on the Wallace-Kenney bandwagon.

Yet if McGrath and Sullivan bring peace to their party in California, they will have wrought a miracle unexpected even by themselves. That is why the Republicans, despite the polls, look forward with confidence to seeing California's crucial 25 electoral votes in the Republican column in 1948, thanks to the disintegration of the Democratic organization and the peculiar ambitions of Henry Wallace. And the California mess is only an extreme example of the sort of disease which is attacking the Democratic organization in many other States, and which the Communist strategists who are the real brain-trusters of the Wallace movement can be expected to exploit to the full.

Greek Communists

By Mark Sullivan

Not-So-Cold War

OVER THE HOLIDAY and weekend while the news and the people were occupied first with Christmas and then with blizzards, occurred an event which carries our relation to the world into a new stage. The event occurred in Greece and superficially seemed not an especially important addition to news that has been coming from that country for a considerable time. The armed Communist group that has been active in northern Greece set up what it called a provisional government, and sought to capture a city in order to have a capital.

Sullivan

For relating this event to America's relation to the world go back to November 7. On that day was issued the frankest official statement yet made about America's place in the attempt of communism to dominate the world. The document did not deal primarily with this subject, and in the part presently significant did not mention Russia by name. It was the report of the President's Committee on Foreign Aid. It derived distinction from its candor and thoroughness, and also from the standing and circumstances of the men composing the committee. They included seven heads or representatives of universities and several labor leaders, businessmen and public officials. The gamut of thought in the committee took in the chairman, Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman, and has a conservative background and an able representative of American liberalism, Robert M. La Follette, jr.

A PASSAGE in this official report goes almost as far as the informal talk of average citizens in recognizing the seriousness of our relations with Russia (though Russia is not named in the passage). It reads:

"Open ideological war has been declared already by the totalitarian nations and their satellites upon all other nations and peoples believing in individual liberty. It has been called a 'cold war' . . . It is cold only in the sense that guns are not shooting and bombs and guided missiles are not exploding. In every other respect the ideological war of Communists is as ruthless and as determined a drive to achieve world domination as a hot war."

Part of this war is the attempt to communize Greece, spearheaded by a little group of Communists, many of them from a neighboring Balkan Communist country, Yugoslavia. The present action of the group in setting up a provisional government on Greek soil is read by informed Washington in the light of another event in the Balkans, the two composing a new stage of the Communist war.

SEVERAL OF the Balkan countries, satellites of Communist Russia, have made treaties of alliance with each other. The most recent last week was Yugoslavia with Hungary. About this series of treaties is a strongly held Washington surmise, related to the Communist development in Greece last week. The Balkan countries, Communist and satellites of Russia, are likely, it is expected, to become a federation. The federation could recognize the Greek Communists as a de facto government. Thereafter the Greek Communists could, under recognized international usage, procure arms and supplies from nearby Communist countries.

By such a development, threat to the independence of Greece, and also Turkey, would become far more formidable than it was last March, when President Truman took account of it. He announced that we would help those countries preserve their independence, and we have in fact helped them with funds and material through an appropriation of 400 million dollars made by Congress.

If the presently surmised development takes place, we will be faced by necessity for a decision, which indeed is more or less implied by what we have already done. On the world front where communism faces the resistance to it which we spearhead, Greece and Turkey will be a point where the conflict is critical. In the terms used by the President's Committee on Foreign Aid, the cold war will move a step closer to take on the characteristics of a hot war. Belief in Washington is that while Russia will not pull a trigger, she will, by actions short of that, test our determination to resist. Part of our answer is not far ahead. The grant we made Greece and Turkey last year expires next June 30. We must decide whether we will continue to support those countries in a changed condition in which the threat to them is increased.

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday saw the following callers:

10:30 a. m.—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

Galt Cites Maryland Water, Sewerage Needs

The necessity for furnishing sewerage and water to thousands of new homes in nearby Maryland has confronted the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission with its most "difficult task in history," Chairman Dwight B. Galt declared yesterday.

Speaking on the weekly Community Reporter radio program on Station WGAY, Galt said the unprecedented residential development in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties has created a critical problem for county officials.

He also described the functions of the sanitary commission, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the board of the two counties.

18,349,574 Acres Are Added to Texas

Austin, Tex., Dec. 30 (AP).—The largest State in the Union was 8,349,574 acres larger today.

New Texas territory, all submerged lands comprising the continental shelf in the Gulf of Mexico, became a part of the State under an official proclamation by Bascom Giles, commissioner of the General Land Office.

Such action had been directed by the Fiftieth Legislature in a bill providing for the gulfward extension of the boundary lines of 12 coastal counties.

Army Favors Anacostia River Plans

Long-standing plans for flood control and navigation improvement of the Anacostia River and its two main branches have been approved by Army Engineers, it was announced yesterday.

The project would cost the Federal Government $4,531,200 and local interests, $3,396,100, it was estimated. The latter sum includes an estimated $494,490 required from the U. S. Public Roads Administration for participation in improvements on Federal-aid highways.

It now requires sanction of the Congressional Committee on River and Harbors and an appropriation from Congress to carry it out.

The plans call for widening and deepening the river from the foot of 15th st. se. to Bladensburg, Md., with a channel 80 feet wide and 8 feet deep at low-water point. It provides also for construction of new levees and repair of old dikes for flood control.

Such channeling would reopen the Anacostia (used by British gunboats in 1814 to lay siege on the Capitol) to limited commercial navigation and most kinds of pleasure boating.

Flood control measures of the project would ease seasonal flooding of the Anacostia and its Eastern and Western branches in the Maryland communities of Bladensburg, Edmonston, Riverdale, Hyattsville, Brentwood, Cottage City and Colmar Manor.

The plan also calls for recreational and commercial boat basins

Got 10 in October

Rail Freight Rates Upped Another 10%

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday raised to 20 per cent the 10 per cent freight rate increase it authorized railroads to make in October.

After long hearings on the railroads' plea for an increase of 30 per cent, the commission announced a 20 per cent boost is approved, effective until next June 30.

All railroad and water carriers and freight forwarders (who assemble small quantity freight for reshipment in carloads) were authorized to make the increases effective after five days notice to the public.

The ICC emphasized the 20 per cent figure "will supersede the (10 per cent) increases temporarily accorded October 6." The railroads asked at that time for "emergency relief" to meet higher wages and other increases in operating costs.

Nonessential Traffic Ordered Off N. Y. Streets

New York, Dec. 30 (AP).—The threat of additional snow brought police orders today to clear streets of all nonessential traffic as the largest snow removal army in New York's history continued to shovel away at the 25.8-inch deluge of last Friday.

Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander ordered police to turn back to garages all trucks not hauling essential supplies, such as food, medicine and fuel, and to affix summonses to all vehicles "impending the progress of ambulances, fire apparatus, snow removal equipment and public emergency vehicles."

The snow-removal army, equipped with more than 2607 pieces of apparatus, grew to 31,111 men, the largest number the city ever has used.

A second snowfall, predicted for today, now is expected by the Weather Bureau to strike tomorrow. However, it was expected to be light and forecasters predicted it would change to sleet and then to rain.

Britain Orders a 'Must' Work Registration

London, Dec. 30 (AP).—Compulsory registration of young men and women not gainfully employed will take place in the United Kingdom January 19 to 24, the Ministry of Labor said tonight.

The order affects men between 18 and 24 and women 18 and 20. They must register at labor offices if unemployed and engaged in work regarded as not essential, such as night clubs, gambling enterprises, etc. The Ministry of Labor may assign them to what it considers vital work.

War Leaders Plead Innocent

Nuernberg, Dec. 30 (U.P.).—Thirteen top-ranking German army leaders and one admiral today pleaded innocent of criminal responsibility for organizing Germany's invasion of neutral countries and slaughtering civilians and military prisoners.

Defendants include Field Marshals Wilhelm Ritter von Leeb, Hugo Sperrle and Wilhelm von Kueckler, and Admiral Otto Schreiwind.

Missing from the dock were Field Marshals Karl Gerd von Runkstedt, Walter von Brauchitsch and Fritz von Mannstein, although their names appear on nearly every page of the lengthy indictment. All three are prisoners of the British army.

Before the defendants pleaded, Dr. Hans Laternser, defense counsel for Von Leeb, moved that the tribunal should declare itself incompetent "As all defendants had formerly been members of the German armed forces and were as such entitled to be tried by military court only."

The tribunal reserved decision

U. S. Investigates Ownership of Refugee Ships

By the United Press

The Justice Department has begun an investigation to determine if the United States' neutrality laws have been violated through the use of former American ships for smuggling Jewish refugees into Palestine, it was disclosed last night.

Authoritative sources said FBI agents were called in by the State Department as a result of British complaints that American vessels were being transferred to "dummy" foreign owners and then put into operation as Palestine blockade runners.

The State Department was said to be particularly concerned about the recent sale to a Panamanian company of two American ships which are scheduled to arrive in Europe today, reportedly to begin running Jewish refugees from Romania to the Holy Land.

The vessels are now called the Pan York and the Pan Crescent.

Pay in 'Inflated Currency' Abroad Held Fully Taxable

By The Associated Press

A former Army officer who sought to trim his income taxes on the grounds that part of his service pay was in "inflated" foreign currencies met a rebuff yesterday from the United States Tax Court.

S. E. Boyer of Casper, Wyo., who served as a lieutenant colonel in Britain and France during the war, had claimed reductions on his 1943, 1944 and 1945 income tax returns.

He said he was given 1 British pound for each $4.03 in pay he drew in England because that was the official or controlled rate, whereas he could have got pounds for $2.75 each on the free market if he had been paid in dollars.

In France, he said, the Army paid him at the official rate of 1 franc for 2 cents, whereas the open market rate was 1 franc for 85/100 of a cent.

On his returns, Boyer undertook to count the difference between those rates as a loss deductible from his tax liability, but the Revenue Bureau disallowed it and billed him for $639 in extra taxes.

The Tax Court, by siding with the Revenue Bureau, rejected contentions that might have cleared the way to widespread tax deductions by large numbers of Army and Navy officers stationed abroad.

The court based its decision on the ground that Boyer could exchange pounds or francs at the official rate upon leaving either country.

Last Dachau Trials Convict 14; Camp to Become a Prison

Dachau, Germany, Dec. 30 (AP).—American war crimes judges handed down decisions in their last 19 cases here today and turned this former Nazi concentration camp with its black history over to German authorities for an ordinary prison.

In their last case here the American judges sentenced Hans Moeser, an SS lieutenant who was leader of the Nordhausen concentration camp, to death by hanging. Fourteen guards at the Nordhausen death hole were convicted and four acquitted. Seven of the convicted guards drew life sentences, one 25 years, three 20 years, one 7 years and two 5 years.

This was the forty-eighth case prosecuted within the Dachau compounds in a year and a half of war crimes trials in which 1688 defendants were tried and 1414 found guilty. Death sentences were pronounced on 425.

A war crimes group headed by Lieut. Col. C. E. Straight will continue to function at Munich, clearing up the few cases remaining.

Absconding Officer Gets Five Years

Camp Lee, Va., Dec. 30 (AP).—Capt. Edward P. Kelly was found guilty by a general court-martial today of embezzlement, forgery, issuing checks without a bank account and being absent without leave. He was sentenced to five years at hard labor and was dishonorably discharged from the Army.

The reserve captain, scheduled for separation from the Army today, received the verdict calmly.

Kelly vanished from Camp Lee December 1 after he had been selected to pick up pay checks of 37 fellow student officers. Three checks, including his own, totalling $1355.71, were cashed at a Petersburg bank. The remaining 34, amounting to $12,791.74, were returned to the camp in a plain envelope from Richmond. After two weeks, he surrendered in New York.

30,000-Sq.-Mile Eniwetok Area To Be 'Dangerous'

By the United Press

Secret tests of the United States' atomic weapons will begin at Eniwetok Atoll around January 31, and a 30,000-square-mile area surrounding the proving grounds has been declared "dangerous" to trespassers of any nation after that date.

The United States Atomic Energy Commission served that "danger, keep out" notice on the world last night with the added warning that an even wider area of the western Pacific may have to be closed off as the experiments progress.

The commission gave no specific dates for the beginning and end of the atomic tests, but it said the restricted zone will be hazardous for aerial and marine navigation "after January 31, 1948, and throughout the calendar year 1948."

Duck Hunting Gets Gable

Bakersfield, Calif., Dec. 30 (U.P.).—Game Warden Les Arnold announced today he had arrested Movie Star Clark Gable, Comedian Frank Morgan and four other persons on charges of illegal possession of ducks.

Press Conference

President Truman will hold a news conference at 10:30 a. m. (EST) today.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

Happy New Year, dear readers! May 1948 be a hurricane of blessings for you—including many that you don't expect. They're the most fun, you know.

SUPERWOMAN'S HERE. "She can sit at a table with 50 men, give each one the thought that she's interested in his individuality, keep them all charmed." In these momentous words Nick Gaston, owner of the Old New Orleans, described his new singer, Rita Dimitriou, who'll make her American bow tonight. Rita comes direct from Athens. She's regarded as the leading night club singer of the Near East, has been starred in Istambul and Cairo as well as her native Athens. The Associated Press bureau in Athens sent special dispatches to the United States about Rita's impending arrival. Which indicates she's quite a gal.

LAST MINUTE BARGAINS. News of easy-on-the-wallet New Year's Eve parties comes from Cross Roads, where you can dance to Junie Mays' band all night, enjoy a hearty breakfast—all for $5. Or you can have a big time at the bar blowing horns and shaking rattles for $2 . . . The same tariffs will prevail at Quonset Inn, where there's about as much room at the big bar as at the tables. Dance music by Sammy Ferro, songs by Mary Martin and Don Samaritan. . . . There's a fine buy at the Brown Derby, too. Give up a mere $2.40 and you can step to George Berg's raz-ma-taz until the small hours, enjoy a big breakfast, have that feeling of starting the New Year right.

Normandy Farm is going plumb frivolous this evening, will stay open until all hours, serve up loads of dance music in addition to their dependably sumptuous dinners. The price is $7.50.

SLAPSIE MAXIE STARS, meaning Patti Moore and Ben Lessy, top the show that'll greet the New Year in Club Cairo. This means about the fastest diversion ever when you consider that Hollywood entertainers get their own entertainment at Slapsie Maxie's. Patti's a New Jersey girl who arrived on the West Coast via the roundabout way of London and Berlin vaude. Lessy's a Brooklynite with a voice that sounds as though he's been cheering the Dodgers since his kindergarten days.

GOOD TIME FOLKS. Babs Lincoln, publicitress of the Mayflower, is spending the holidays in New Orleans . . . And as soon as the Mayflower Lounge is cleared up after New Year's Eve, head greeter Teddy will start for Miami.

HELINE AND RICE
At the Casino Royal

Money is one thing that doesn't bother Ramon Ramos, bandleader in the Statler's Embassy Room. His father is an officer of the National Bank of Mexico, also owns a 30,000-acre hacienda.

THE DREAM GIRLS. Helene, now dancing at the Casino Royal, looks like the prize graduate of a charm school. She blossoms with smiles, is perfection in motion and grooming. And all of her gowns are productions . . . Dreamy-eyed gents (often the same ones) look up at Dona Mason on the King Cole Room bar night after night. Their eyes remind one of faithful St. Bernards. Which certainly makes Dona a dream girl . . . For sheer blond dazzlement, it's hard to top singer Sherry Sherwood of the Rainbow. Also she's the dream girl of television, getting away to a fine start in this new medium . . . The Lotus will launch a super-dooper new show on New Year's Eve, beauteous gals galore, but none of 'em will look more like a magazine cover than their boss, booker Jean Davis, who started her career in a dancing line.

Gosh, almost didn't tell you! Bob Knight of the Lounge Riviera is playing "Jingle Bells" as a samba. It's a lot jollier than most sambas, too.

CHRISTMAS CARDS are like voices—from friends near by and those half a world away. Here's thanking all of the kind hearted folks whose cards are stacked on my desk. They were grand, each and every one. Weirdest came from Jerome Lee of the Bengasi who chose to pose as a tired lion. Mike Durso of Grosner's sent an oversized baggage tag with appropriate sentiments. The Beattie ad agency card looked like something in Egyptian—until it was held up to the mirror . . . Then there's the ever fascinating card of Meyer Davis, theatrical producer and top society band leader, with his family. It's gotten to the stage now where it's hard to tell mamma and papa from the boys and girls . . . Olmsted's gave out with a handsome and dignified picture of the Washington Monument. . . . Al Sakol of the Lotus thoughtfully chose a Chinese holiday card.

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Properties, Inc., yesterday reported net income of $481,034 before depreciation for the fiscal year ended October 31, compared with $586,509 in the previous fiscal year.

Weakly

Gross revenues totaled $4,100,260, against $4,251,975 in the previous year. Balance sheet showed current assets of $1,349,857, against $965,489 in previous year; current liabilities of $922,109 compared with $808,643.

The corporation operates the Wardman Park and Carlton Hotels, the apartment house at 2700 Connecticut ave. and an office building at 1001 Vermont ave.

President Frank E. Weakly, commenting on the year's operations, said: "Decline in gross income . . . is due principally to the decline in beverage sales . . . Food sales held fairly well but with the sharp increase in food costs, profits declined. Revenue from rooms and apartments increased moderately due to certain rate increases effective in the second half of the year. Expenses reflect increased wage rates and increased cost of everything purchased."

He added that overall debt retirement out of earnings for the latest fiscal year will amount to $384,457.

NEW PARTNERS: Orvis Bros. & Co., member of the New York Stock Exchange with a Washington office, announced yesterday that Clifford G. Doerle, William G. Wigton and J. Zalduondo is resigning from Pan American Airways after 18 years' service.

Hill added that the firm, whose offices are at 5th and V sts. ne., increased its personnel by 20 per cent over 1946 and has taken steps to improve its plant and trucking facilities in anticipation of expanded building needs in 1948.

D. C. Couple Links Fish to Tumors

Experiments Show How Embryo May Grow Like Cancer

Answer to the mysterious origin of tumors may hinge on experiments being conducted on the bulbous-headed, slimy-skinned, common toadfish.

The experiments were described yesterday by a Washington husband and wife before the annual meeting of the American Society of Zoologists, at Hotel Stevens, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Paul S. Galtsoff, chief of shell fishery investigations, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and his wife, Eugenia, of 420 Cumberland ave., Chevy Chase, Md., told of their studies on the repulsive looking fish.

The two implanted embryos of toadfish into the abdominal cavities of adult fish to find that they developed tumors in the fishes' livers or which attached themselves to abdominal muscles or intestines.

Orderly development of the whole embryo ceased when implanted inside the adult fish, they reported. Instead, certain embryonic tissues continued to grow in a disorderly fashion, invading and injuring the organs of the host.

Some of the tumors produced in the toadfish resembled the growth of malignant tumors like sarcomas (cancer), they said, but added that further studies were needed and were being carried on to determine if the tumors were malignant.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

In Congress

Fort Belvoir Eviction Ban To Be Sought

Eviction of veterans from Government-owned housing projects reserved for military personnel may be stopped by Congress.

Representative John A. Blatnik (D., Minn.) said yesterday he expects to introduce legislation when Congress reconvenes to protect persons like John M. Herbert, now facing eviction from his Cameron Valley home in Alexandria.

Herbert is being evicted from the project, largely reserved for Fort Belvoir personnel, because he left the Army. He said in court two weeks ago he was under duress when he signed a lease providing for eviction in April.

Judge James R. Duncan of Alexandria Civil and Police Court continued Herbert's case indefinitely pending congressional action.

Kingsley Named To High FSA Post

Donald Kingsley yesterday was appointed assistant Federal Security administrator, succeeding Maurice Collins, who retired in September after more than 35 years in Federal service.

Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security administrator, announced Kingsley's appointment and said he had already assumed his new position.

Kingsley served in various executive posts with the War Manpower Commission and was deputy director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion before becoming program coordinator in the White House.

Last June he became economic adviser to the International Labor Office and was chief of the ILO mission to Greece.

Governor's Council Meets Here Next Week

Augusta, Me., Dec. 30 (U.P.).—Gov. Horace A. Hildreth of Maine, chairman of the National Governors' Conference, today announced a meeting of the group's executive council would be held January 9-10 in Washington to discuss tax reduction.

Hildreth listed Governors scheduled to attend as Millard F. Caldwell, Florida; Frank Carlson, Kansas; Phil M. Donnelly, Missouri; Ralph E. Gates, Indiana; William Lee Knuos, Colorado; J. Strom Thurmond, South Carolina, and Mon C. Wallgren, Washington.

Plumbers Get Sewer Accord From Counties

Agreement in the controversial issue of water and sewer installations in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties was effected yesterday between the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and the Master Plumbers Association.

The commission agreed that it would make water and sewer connections in all improved streets and highways and the master plumbers will make connections in new subdivisions and on unimproved streets and highways.

The issue had been in dispute for more than a month.

The commission previously had been required by law to make all connections from the mains to the property lines and the plumbers then carried the services into the houses. But the last session of the Legislature granted it authority to permit installations by the plumbers.

The plumbers association at first hailed the new law as an improvement but soon began to complain about the necessity for obtaining permits from State, county and municipal governments for cutting into streets and highways.

The commission has authority to cut streets without permits but ruled that it does not have authority to delegate this authority. The new procedure is designed to eliminate the need for plumbers to obtain permits since most of the new streets will be outside the jurisdiction of townships.

The Sanitary Commission yesterday adopted new rates for water and sewer connections. Water main connections in the future will cost $225 for the average-size pipe and sewer connections will cost $350.

Officials Warn Parents to Stop School Strike

In a holiday effort to end the students strike at Browne Junior High School, District school administrators yesterday circularized the pupils parents, warning them of their "responsibilities."

The letter was sent out over the signatures of Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools, and Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent.

The students, supported by their parents, refused to attend classes beginning December 3 as a protest against transfer to Blow and Webb annexes to obtain fulltime schooling in place of parttime work at overcrowded Browne school.

Admonishing the parents to return their children to school at its reopening January 5, the circular said:

"Even though a parent may not agree with established school policies, he is not relieved of the responsibility to send his children to school. At the present time, some patrons of the Browne Junior High School object to the use of the Blow-Webb schools as a temporary (underlined) relief to the overcrowding of Browne Junior High School, until the completion of the Miller Junior High School, contract for which was awarded December 9, 1947, at a contract price of $1,626,400.

"Opposition to this temporary measure, however, does not relieve any parent of the responsibility to send his child to school each day."

Spokesmen for parents of the striking pupils could not be immediately reached for comment.

2 Fined $20 for Tax Evasion in Arlington

Arlington County yesterday cracked down on tax evasion as two residents were fined $20 each and costs for failure to file State and local tax returns.

Fined were Harold J. Gallagher, 2116 South 2d st. and Herbert M. Tracy, 2425 North Curtis rd. Both, according to County Judge Hugh Reid, had failed to file returns for several years.

Reid said Tracy had not filed returns for the past five years.

Meanwhile, a warrant was issued for Kirk A. Keegan, 1732 North Troy st., Arlington, also on tax charges.

Also in court yesterday on similar charges were two other county residents who promptly filed their returns and thereby obtained dismissal of the charges after payment of court costs.

They were Houston Blankenship, 1034 S. Scott st. and Guy E. Schaefer, 1742 N. Rhodes st.

In a statement yesterday, Arlington Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green said that all persons who resided in the county as of January 1, 1947, "have either filed a tax return or have been assessed, with a few exceptions."

The exceptions, he said, included about 200 women residents of Arlington Farms residential halls who have refused to file returns on grounds that they maintain residence in other States.

Green said he would turn their cases over to representatives of the Virginia State Department of Taxation in Alexandria for further investigation.

Parents Call Strike, Say School Is Unsafe

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 30 (AP). Only five pupils showed up for classes at the White House School in suburban Westmoreland today after a strike called by parents to compel the authorities to complete repairs ordered recently by the tSate fire marshal.

Parents kept 145 grade school children at home until fire hazards are eliminated.

New Year's Shuffle

Little '48 Alters Film Schedules

By Richard L. Coe

A CHANCE PHONE INQUIRY reminds us that you may not have noticed that the New Year will be ushered in by odd opening days for the new pictures and much extra doings at midnight.

Three new pictures open today, though one of them won't be screened till midnight.

Joan Crawford arrives at the Capitol this morning in "Daisy Kenyon," with Dana Andrews and Henry Fonda as the men in her life. This is from the best-selling novel by Elizabeth Janeway and should prove a screen best-seller as well. Smith and Dale, famed with varying partners as "The Avon Comedy Four," headline the stage bill. The Capitol will be having a midnight show, with the stage revue going on at 12:15 to give folks a chance to settle down from the excitement of 1948's arrival.

The Warner brings in "My Wild Irish Rose" this morning. This finds Dennis Morgan as Chauncey Olcott, the Irish lad who became one of America's best-loved singers. Morgan, you'll remember, broke into movies originally as a singer, though he hasn't been called on to use his pipes much. Andrea King plays Lillian Russell and you can count on a shoal of Old Erin ballads. There'll be a midnight show starting at 11:30.

The Metropolitan has something special for its midnight patrons—the first showing of a James Mason film, "The Upturned Glass." This murder yarn is something of a Mason family affair. It was written for the British star by the American Army officer who became his pal in wartime England, Pennsylvania's John P. Monaghan, and the screenplay was written by Monaghan and Pamela Kellino, Mrs. Mason, who plays opposite her husband. Up to its midnight special, the Metropolitan will continue with "The Fabulous Texan." But you won't get the two of 'em for one price. The theater will empty at 11 and reopen at 11:30, with "The Upturned Glass" hitting the screen after 1948.

DOWNTOWN'S OTHER houses including the Central, all will have midnight shows, details of which are in the ads. The Little and the Hippodrome will NOT, however, though the Pix will.

Like the Metropolitan, the Pix will inaugurate its new bill at midnight. "Blockheads," the Laurel and Hardy comedy, starts things off at 10 minutes past the new year, and will be followed by "Good Girls Go to Paris" at 1:05.

Downtown, too, the Gayety will be whooping things up, adding a 2:30 a. m. performance after its midnight gala. Georgia Sothern's the star of this one and Georgia promises to be in fine fettle for the owls who just won't go home.

And don't forget, you Wednesday matinee regulars at the National: this week's Wednesday afternoon performance of "I Remember Mama" comes on Friday!

Out in the neighborhoods, at least 10 theaters will be having midnight doings: the Apex, Penn, Naylor, Senator, Atlas, Apollo, Avenue Grand, Beverly and Sheridan. There may be some added starters, so if your own isn't on our list don't feel we've skipped you on purpose.

That's about the picture picture for the sitophiles.

FOR DANCOPHILES there's something special, too—Vaughn Monroe, with his band, at the National Guard Armory. Victor's recording king has smashed a new record for Name Bands, Inc., before even getting here. Table reservations were sold out yesterday. But there's still dancing admission available at $2.50 per person. These you get at Super Music City, 1350 F st., or at the Willard Hotel ticket bureau.

Vaughn's got a busy day today. He'll be recording all day in New York to beat the Petrillo disking ban, but promises to be aboard the 4 o'clock train from Gotham—which is something of a concession to safety. Normally Monroe pilots his own plane for such short hops as this.

For the coup in getting Monroe's hard-to-get band here for the top dancing night of them all, Kay Ford can take a bow. When Monroe was here in September at her husband's Capitol Theater, Kay took Monroe over to the armory and pinned him down for December 31. Bandleaders, too, prefer blondes.

JOAN'S BACK: The fabulous Crawford returns this morning to the Capitol screen in "Daisy Kenyon." With Joan in this scene from the Elizabeth Janeway novel is Dana Andrews and that unbandaged mark on his forehead means that Joan rebuffed his advances

False Arrest Suits May Test Police Power

Three damage suits for false arrest, which may test discretionary arrest powers of police, were filed in District Court yesterday.

The suits, totaling damage claims of $30,000, were filed against Police Pvt. Edward J. Long of the Twelfth Precinct. He arrested three persons for disorderly conduct after entering a private home without warrant on hearing "what sounded like a fight."

The three, Nicholas S. Boxwell and wife, Evelyn W. Boxwell, both of 14 R st. ne., and the husband's brother-in-law, James R. Clark, of 222 E st. ne., were freed of the charges four days later at a hearing before Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott.

Judge Scott ruled at the hearing, October 21, that the matter was "a case of one policeman's word against the word of the five persons who attended the party."

Identical suits asking $10,000 damages each were entered by the two Boxwells and Clark through Attorney Myer Koonin. The suits state the Boxwells and guests were "startled to find" Policeman Long in their kitchen in th emidst of their party.

Long, the suit states, accused them on the spot of disorderly conduct; left, and returned with other policemen to arrest them.

At Police Trial Board hearing on November 14, charges of conduct unbecoming an officer were heard against Long because of the incident, and were dismissed. At that hearing, Long's attorney, F. J. Donhue, pleaded it "a rather dangerous situation" if acquital could be used as a basis for reprisal against policemen.

Westminster Fire Causes $125,000 Loss

Westminster, Md., Dec. 30 (AP).—An antique-filled warehouse, a lumber yard and a row of garages were destroyed by fire early today, and police suspected it was the work of a firebug.

More than 400 volunteer firemen from three counties fought the flames, preventing them from spreading to nearby dwellings.

Loss was estimated at $125,000.

Five structures were destroyed. Three were in the lumber yard, while two were owned by the antique dealer, Mrs. J. J. O'Farrell. Her patrons include movie star Dorothy Lamour and Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the former United States Vice President.

The fire started in the center of a 200-foot warehouse used by the Lincoln Manufacturing Co., makers of stepladders.

Police and firemen likened the blaze to recent unexplained fires in Westminster and vicinity.

About 2000 spectators watched as an explosion at the height of the fire ripped off the warehouse roof. The blast was attributed to gas.

Submerged Tidelands Hearings Set Feb. 23

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee will open hearings February 23 on legislation to give the States property rights to submerged tidelands.

Senator Moore (R., Okla.), chairman, said representatives of the State Governors' Conference, the National Association of State Attorneys General, and the Department of Justice probably will testify.

If enacted, the bill would reverse a recent Supreme Court decision that the tidelands are Federal property.

Earth Has 2 Cores, One Inside The Other, Says Seismologist

Chicago, Dec. 30 (U.P.).—A seismologist reported today the earth has two cores, or kernels, one inside the other, and that both of them reflect signals to the world's surface.

The Rev. James B. MacElwane, S.J., of St. Louis University said the new findings were based on studies of elastic waves, generated by earthquakes.

From the studies, he told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the picture of the interior of the earth may be drawn as:

A layered crust underlain by a shell about 600 miles thick, which he described as the "outer mantle." Underneath the mantle there lies an intermediate shell some 1100 miles in thickness. This leads to the conclusion that there is at the center of the earth a core or nucleus with little more than one-half the diameter of the earth, or about twice as large as the moon.

Inside the larger core there is an inner core about whose constitution little is known. It seems to differ greatly from the outer portion.

He discussed studies of earthquakes deep in the earth, and said that the deepest ever recorded occurred about 450 miles below the surface.

30-Year Veteran of Army Dies In Hospital of Bullet Wound

A veteran of 30 years in the Army, who, police said, shot himself December 6, died yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital.

The man, John J. Maurer, 60, fired a shot in the direction of his wife at their home, 2415 Congress st. se., and then sent a bullet crashing upward through his head, police reported.

His wife, Mrs. Ida May Maurer, fled to a neighbor's house. Later she returned to find her husband in a semiconscious condition on his bed. A .38-caliber revolver and two empty cartridge shells were found beside him.

Maurer was treated at Gallinger Hospital and transferred to Walter Reed.

Mrs. Maurer told homicide detectives her husband suffered from cancer of the tongue and recently underwent an operation.

He served in the Army from 1912 to 1942, including overseas duty in World War I. After retirement, he worked at the Naval Gun Factory until late in November.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald withheld a certificate of death pending outcome of an autopsy by Army physicians today.

Knife Fights Hospitalize Man, Woman

Two persons were injured in knife fights reported by police yesterday.

Robert Greenhill, 37, of 1016 R st. nw., was stabbed in the chest, the right side of his head and on the left hand with a pocket knife in a sidewalk altercation in the unit block of Quincey pl. ne. His condition was reported satisfactory at Gallinger Hospital last night.

Police arrested Henry Myrich, 38, of 2437 M st. nw., and charged him with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Mrs. Inez Davis, 32, of 824 25th st. nw., was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for wounds to both forearms which police say were inflicted by a butcher knife during a fight at her apartment.

Pink Elephant Note

Pittsburgh, Dec. 30 (AP).—Francis Punzak blinked, then took another good look at that strange object in the cellar of his apartment house. It was a dead octopus. How it got there no one in the building could say.

Bears Get Layne; Gilmer Denies $100,000 Demand

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30.—New Orleans' Sugar Bowl week, a five-day sports diet to satisfy the most omniverous fan, has moved through the track meet, the tennis matches, the college fights and the boat racing. And now coming up on Thursday is the main event—Harry Gilmer vs. Bobby Lane.

POVICH

The Sugar Bowl people, the lucky stiffs, are traditionally blessed with box-office football attractions. Last year it was Charlie Trippi of Georgia vs. Charley Justice of Carolina, in an individual battle of ace backs that threatened to transcend the game. And this week they're scoring again with a Gilmer-Layne duel wrapped up in an Alabama vs. Texas package.

Layne is the hottest article to come out of college football in Texas since Sammy Baugh was making forward pass history in 1936. Layne's number and percentage of completions, incidentally, surpasses Baugh's feats at TCU. Pro football scouts by the scores will have their glasses trained on Layne and Gilmer.

Texas and Layne are now a one-touchdown favorite to lick Gilmer and Alabama on Thursday, but roistering Texans who are flourishing folding money are hitting the city in train loads and the odds may go up.

REPRESENTATIVES of the Redskins, the Baltimore Colts, the Chicago Bears and the Brooklyn Dodgers have appointments with Gilmer and Layne after the game. The Redskins and Dodgers are bidding for Gilmer and the Colts and Bears are competing for Layne.

The Redskins are envisioning the pass-happy Gilmer as the successor to Sammy Baugh and can outbid the impoverished Brooklyn club. But it is no certainty that the rich Bears will wangle Layne away from Baltimore despite the Colts' financial losses the past season.

Bob Rodenberg, Baltimore owner, arrived in New Orleans today prepared to go high for Layne. "It's our chance to show our Baltimore fans that we mean business and won't be outbid," said Rodenberg. "We need an outstanding star like Layne not only to do things with the football for us, but to show our good faith."

NEITHER Layne nor Gilmer is a mere forward passing specialist. They can throw that ball well—who does it best is a raging dispute—but they can tote it, too, and do. Gilmer is the more versatile performer. He can play 60 minutes, if need be. Layne is withheld on defense by Coach Blair Cherry who, like the Redskins, doesn't want to risk injury to his most valuable asset.

Alabama has attained something of powerhouse proportions after losing early-season games to Tulane and Vanderbilt. The Crimson Tide won its last seven in a row, impressively, with Gilmer pitching and Fullback Lowell Tew smashing at the tackles and outside 'em.

Tew has been drafted by the New York Yankees of the All-America Conference, and supposedly already has agreed to terms. He isn't Alabama's only fullback threat, however. He is replaced frequently by Red Noonan, a New Orleans lad coming back to his home town for the game. Noonan was somewhat famous at the age of 8. He was part of a tumbling act at the Chicago World Fair.

IN ALABAMA, the 75,000 Sugar Bowl fans will see one of the few remaining teams that still use the old Notre Dame shift, and plays behind a balanced line. After the huddle in T-formation, the 'Bama backs shift to the left or right into the Notre Dame box, and rarely use the man-in-motion play of T-teams.

Layne's chief passing target with Texas will be Jim Canady, the end who is also exciting furious bidding by the pro clubs lucky enough to draft him. Canady's catching of passes have been on the sensational side all season, and on the other end will be Max Bumgardner, who is rated Canady's equal by some football men.

Texas is strictly a T-formation team with Layne playing under the center, but Alabama is a firm holdout against the new-fangled T. It's one of the few teams in the Nation to hew to the old Rockne box formation, from the balanced line. It's so old fashioned that in these days it amounts to a New Look on the gridiron.

Berardino Changes His Mind, Signs With Veeck

Hollywood, Dec. 30 (U.P.).—Infielder Johnny Berardino today signed a contract to play with the Cleveland Indians, who lined him up after he indicated he'd rather act in the movies than play for the Washington Nats.

Indians' President Bill Veeck came over from Tucson, where his club will train next spring, for the signing and said he would head back to Cleveland tonight.

He'll Make Movies, Too

"We've got things all arranged so that Johnny will be able to play ball during the season and make movies in his off time," Veeck said.

"We even fixed it so he doesn't have to go before the cameras again until October 10, which gives us time for the World Series."

Berardino will report to the Indians' camp at Tucson after completing work on his first movie, for Richard Polmer Productions.

The Indians got Berardino from the St. Louis Browns early this month in exchange for Outfielder George Metkovich and more than $50,000 cash.

Chandler Voided Deal

Berardino, 30, traded earlier to the Nats, had greeted the news of his trade by announcing that he was signing a long-term movie contract and quitting baseball for good.

The Nats had purchased Johnny for $25,000 and Second Baseman Gerry Priddy. But after the announcement of Berardino's intention to make the movies his career, Clark Griffith, owner, asked Commissioner Happy Chandler to void the deal.

Griffith, at the time, had tried to talk Berardino into sticking to baseball, but, according to the Nats' owner, his mind was made up and the movies were his choice.

Utah Upset By 49 to 44

New York, Dec. 30 (AP).—In one of the biggest upsets of the college basketball season, oft-beaten St. John's University of Brooklyn knocked off Utah's famous "Blitzkids," 49 to 44, tonight in the first game of a college double-header before a stunned Madison Square Garden crowd of 18,500.

Bottling up Utah's attack thoroughly, the rebounding Redmen, who had dropped all previous Garden engagements, took an 8-0 lead in the first three minutes and the flabbergasted Utes never caught up.

The Rocky Mountain five, a nine-point favorite in the betting, never quite got over this early shock and although it managed to pull even midway in the first half at 17-17, it quickly fell behind again and trailed 30-23 during intermission.

Injured Star Bob Chappius Skips Practice

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 30 (U.P.).—The Michigan Wolverines went through their next to last workout today without the services of their passing ace, Bob Chappius, but Coach Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler was confident his star halfback would be ready for the Rose Bowl game.

Chappius remained behind at the team's hotel headquarters receiving heat treatments for a pulled muscle in his thigh. The black-haired All-American suffered the injury during practice yesterday.

Trainers immediately ordered Chappius to stay off his injured leg and rest until game time, skipping the workouts today and tomorrow. But they reported to Crisler that the injury appeared to be responding to treatment.

Olympic Squabble

THE STATE DEPARTMENT said in reply to a query yesterday that it isn't going to get caught on thin ice in any dispute between two United States amateur hockey groups.

The question came up when it was learned that Jack Riley, who is sponsored by the American Hockey Association, was turned down on his request for a passport to represent the United States in the Olympic Games in Switzerland.

Did this mean that the State Department was going to favor the other team, the one sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union?

No, said Press Officer Reginald Mitchell. He said Riley's application merely was turned down until he could get the American Hockey Association to verify that he is to be sent to Switzerland as a hockey player.

Contract for Lewis

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 30 (AP). Washington and Lee Athletics Director Richard A. Smith said today that W. and L. had offered Art Lewis a three-year contract as head football coach and that Lewis had agreed verbally to accept it.

Lewis now holds a contract running through the 1948 season. The athletics director said, however, that the athletic council has agreed to destroy this and tend Lewis the contract running through the 1950 season.

The Easy Way

IONIA, MICH., Dec. 30 (AP).—Two football fans sent back a triumphant message from Pasadena, Calif., today that they had solved the Rose Bowl ticket shortage.

The pair reported that as soon as they arrived they landed jobs as ushers at the Rose Bowl stadium.

Dodds Shovels, Runs

NEWTON, MASS., Dec. 30 (AP).—Star miler Gil Dodds helped shovel snow from Boston College's outdoor board track today and then donned running togs to turn in the fastest 600 yards he ever has raced on his favorite training boards.

Coach Jack Ryder clocked Dodds in 1:13.8 for the "600" in the Boston A. A. runner's first real test for his 1948 track campaign.

A Wet New Year's

Weatherman Takes Damp View of Most Bowl Games

The weather man ominously warned Tuesday that there may be wet fields for nearly all of the New Year's Day Bowl football games and actual rain during some of them.

There were exceptions to the rule: Cold and clear was prediction for the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex.; cool and only partly cloudy for the East-West All-Star game at San Francisco; and clear for the Harbor Bowl game at San Diego, Calif., the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., and the Salad Bowl at Phoenix, Ariz.

Otherwise, the weatherman, in long-range predictions issued Tuesday but subject to change, saw in the future heavy black clouds, general rain on the eve of the games and in some cases showers on the day of the games.

There was the definite possibility of rain New Year's Day for the Rose Bowl between Michigan and Southern California at Pasadena, Calif., the Sugar Bowl between Alabama and Texas at New Orleans, and the Orange Bowl between Kansas and Georgia Tech at Miami.

The Orange Bowl promised a balmy 83 degrees at Miami, but said that there was the possibility of showers. They would, however, be concentrated in the morning hours, the weatherman forecast.

The same prediction held true for the State of Florida's other games—the 'Gator Bowl between Georgia and Maryland at Jacksonville, the Tangerine Bowl between Catawba and Marshall at Orlando and the Cigar Bowl between Westchester (Pa.) Teachers and Missouri Valley at Tampa.

Maryland's Coaches Are In Great Demand

Maryland's coaching staff seems to be in great demand over the Nation.

A look at the picture, following the latest report of a Terp coach shifting shows this:

1. Jim Tatum, head football coach, is being mentioned as possible civilian coach at the Naval Academy.

2. Walter Driskill, Terps' athletic director, is admittedly entertaining an offer from the University of Colorado to take over as head football coach—and

3. Basketball Coach Flucie Stewart has been linked to the football coaching job at Furman University.

Riggs, Kramer Clash Here

The touring carnival of professional tennis champions, featuring Bobby Riggs and Jack Kramer, pulls into Washington for an appearance at Uline Arena on Thursday night, January 22.

Riggs, former United States Davis Cup star, and Kramer, the Nation's top amateur netman for the past several years, have already met twice on their projected sweep around the country. Riggs has won both times and dropped only one set along the way.

Appearing with Riggs and Kramer will be Dinny Pails, Australia's outstanding professional, and Pancho Segura, the ambidextrous Ecuadorian.

The show attracted over 15,000 fans and a $50,000 gate despite a snowstorm in its debut at Madison Square Garden, and also set a new paid attendance record in Pittsburgh's Duquesne Gardens.

Tickets for the traveling troupe's performance here are on sale at Uline and at the Fairway Sports Store, 1328 G st. nw.

'Skins' No. 1 Pick Merely Talks Terms 'Generally'

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

While professional scouts hovered over the scenes of various bowl games, check books in hand, there were two important developments on the National Football League front yesterday:

1. The Pittsburgh Steelers traded draft rights to Bobby Layne, Texas, to the Chicago Bears for the rights to Ray Evans, Kansas.

2. Harry Gilmer, Alabama passing star, denied that he is demanding a 5-year contract for $100,000 to play with the Redskins.

Tracing a report that Gilmer had made such a demand, The Washington Post yesterday phoned Head Coach Turk Edwards of the Redskins at the Buena Vista Hotel in Biloxi, Miss., Sugar Bowl training grounds of Alabama.

Only Gilmer Is There

"I'm sorry," the operator said, "Mr. Edwards cannot be reached. The only member of the Redskins I can contact is a man named Harry Gilmer."

Gilmer came to the phone and denied having made a demand for a $100,000 contract.

"I don't want to even think about pro ball until after the Sugar Bowl," he said. "I have talked general terms of a Washington contract with Mr. Edwards here, but no decision has been reached.

"No, I have received no offer from Brooklyn (by whom Gilmer was picked in the All-America Conference draft). I like Washington, what little I saw of it on my trip there a few weeks ago, but the town itself won't convince me where to play pro football."

"When I make up my mind in a couple of weeks," Gilmer said, "my salary request won't be based on Charley Trippi's fat pay or anyone else's."

(Trippi, former Georgia star, was reportedly signed by the Chicago Cardinals a year ago for $100,000 for three years.)

Layne's acquisition by Chicago confirmed reports at the National League draft meeting in Pittsburgh 10 days ago that he would go to the Bears.

Evans' Part Is Surprise

But yesterday's announcement in an Associated Press story that Evans figured in the deal came as somewhat of a surprise.

Earlier reports had either Bob Fenimore of the Bears or Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame's brightest star, going to Pittsburgh in exchange for Layne.

One factor in the Layne-for-Evans deal, according to league observers, was Layne's expressed desire to play for a team that uses the T-formation.

Layne played the "T" under Coach Blair Cherry at Texas this season and will be right at home in Coach George Halas' version of the "T" at Chicago.

Lujack, Layne and Luckman

If both Layne and Lujack join the Bears next season, Chicago will have three of the best passers in the game in Sid Luckman, Layne and Lujack.

Evans, who led Kansas University through its most successful season in years, won the nickname of "Rifler of the Midlands" by completing half of the 60 passes he threw during the regular season.

The Bears obtained rights to Evans in 1943 while he was still in the service. He returned to Kansas last fall and leads his team into the Orange Bowl game with Georgia Tech. Layne will play in the Sugar Bowl against Alabama.

Here's Bowl Winners—According to Statistics

Michigan by 17 Points—Texas Over Alabama—Georgia to Top Terps

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Dec. 30 (AP).—Michigan will beat Southern California by 17 points, Texas will outrun Alabama and Mississippi will throw at least 25 passes against Texas Christian in New Year's Day football games if the teams maintain the averages they compiled during the 1947 season.

Relative statistics mean about as much as the color of the players' jerseys but those who are interested in figures—the kind from one to ten—can draw some definite comparisons between the various Bowl opponents from the records that earned them their invitations.

These records, presented by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, indicate that the outcome of the seven biggest postseason classics will be precisely as follows:

Michigan over Southern California in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.

Texas over Alabama in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, La.

Penn State over Southern Methodist in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex.

Kansas over Georgia Tech in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla.

Missippi over Texas Christian in the Delta Bowl at Memphis, Tenn.

Georgia over Maryland in the Dixie Bowl at Birmingham, Ala.

Since each team's performance was recorded against different opposition, generally from widely separated sectors, the bureau's helpful hints are not recommended for those who prefer to back their hunches with cash.

But for what it's worth, the regular season statistics show, for instance, that Michigan averaged 412.7 yards per game, compared with an average gain of 295.6 yards for Southern Cal.

Each team played nine games, with the Wolverines chalking up 154 first downs and scoring 345 points against the Trojans' 135 first downs and 193 points.

Michigan's ground attack accounted for 238.8 yards per game, an average of 5.01 yards on each running play, while Southern Cal averaged 178.6 yards per game on the ground and 3.87 per rush.

Texas and Alabama played 10 games each. Texas scored 365 points, registered 149 first downs and averaged 124.3 yards per game, 210.7 of them on the ground. Alabama, with 203 points and 132 first downs, averaged 259.3 yards per game, including 194.4 by rushing.

With Bobby Layne doing most of the throwing, the Longhorns completed 73 of 134 passes for a percentage of .545, while Alabama and Harry Gilmer completed 61 of 104, a percentage of .587.

The statistics indicated that Penn State will do the running and Southern Methodist the passing in the Cotton Bowl fray. In nine games, Penn State scored 310 points, made 132 first downs and gained 363.9 yards per game, 301.4 of it on the ground, whereas SMU scored only 169 points and made 117 first downs in 10 games during which it averaged 254.6 yards, including 162.4 by running.

Here's how the statistics stack up:

What Some Guys Won't Do for Pass

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Anytime I want to lose friends and not influence relatives, I write a piece about passes to to sports events.

Haight

The subject of passes is seldom brought up around our sports department that someone doesn't recall the Shirley Povich Story.

Shirley and I were up to our necks in getting out our pages one night when a stranger sauntered into the sports department. True to our motto of "We're never too busy to say hello" I welcomed the fellow and asked if I could be of help.

"No," he replied, "I wanted to speak to my friend Stanley over there."

When Shirley looked up he approached him like a long, lost buddy and said, "Sorry to bother you while you're busy Stanley, but I'd like to have four passes to the wrestling matches." Mistreatment of his name, plus the pressure of business probably was too much for Shirley for he snapped, "I haven't any wrestling passes and, furthermore, get out of here! Can't you see I'm busy?"

WITH THAT THE stranger turned and when he reached the door, he looked around the corner and said, "No hard feelings, Poolrick."

Modestly, I'll say I made a great interception of our best pastepot.

This is the same Shirley Povich, who probably will murder me when he reads this, who thinks nothing of using his own money to buy a dozen tickets to the world series or a big fight to fill requests of friends who believe they are free passes.

Perhaps I wouldn't be pecking away about passes had not Nephew Charlie made his semi-monthly phone call this morning.

The stock conversation went thusly:

"Hello, Uncle, Walter. How are you feeling?"

"What do you care? What do you want to see and how many do you want?"

There's a species of sports fan who suffers from passitis. He believes he is a chump or a sucker if he pays his way to a sports event. He will go to any extreme to get a freebee. And in the majority of cases it is not a monetary selfishness with him.

Almost any sportwriter can point to a fellow who will gladly buy a $1.50 lunch, pay the carfare, etc. for a $1 pass to a ball game on which he must pay a 35-cent service charge.

Among the racing scribes, it's not a rarity to find a man who will stand on his head for a badge and then think nothing of losing $50 on the first race.

TIME WAS WHEN promoters, track operators and baseball club officials looked upon free passes as a necessary evil.

During the depression, fights, etc., were loaded with "paper" to make the house look good. Race tracks gave away badges galore. Some tracks even had them on the cigar store counters and on bars to be had for the trouble of picking them up.

Times change. Now, through the "tax and service charge" the people who put on the show are making pass-getters pay their way. For instance, in recent years one race track has been getting 85 cents on passes despite a full admission price of $1.

The tightest sports gate in America, I believe, is at the Santa Anita race track. Unless you have legitimate business at the track, it is almost impossible to get a pass of any kind.

Asked about it, Fred Purner, former Washingtonian who is the publicity man, will tell you, "We present such a big show that we need the gate money to help our profit. Passes make for jealousy, made the closed gate decision beso we just don't give any. We fore we opened and we have been doing all right."

BUT LIKE THE pass hound who really isn't trying to save money, nobody can say Santa Anita is cheap.

For instance, for the 1935 first running of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, the track sent a special plane to Florida, transported 30 sportswriters to and from the West Coast and treated them like so many kings at a price that must have been terrific.

However, when one of these much-pampered writers, whose wife was visiting on the coast, asked for a pass for her he got a polite, but firm, "No."

The pass story I like best is about a blind, former boxer who stood near the entrance of a fight arena and held out his tin cup when he heard people approaching. Several fans dropped coins.

Along came a man carrying a portable typewriter. The blind man proffered his cup and the fellow grunted, "Working press."

Landon Ace Also Wins In Doubles

New York, Dec. 30 (AP).—Seventeen-year-old Gilbert Bogley of Landon School, Washington, D. C., stroked his way to the semifinals of the National Junior Indoor Tennis Championship Tournament as he defeated Marvin Mantin of Kalamazoo, Mich., 6—0, 6—4, here today.

Sidney Schwartz, the Brooklynite, who plays for the University of Miami, Fla., will be second-seeded Bogley's foe tomorrow. Third-seeded Schwartz defeated Jimmy Saunders of Amarillo, Tex., 6—1, 7—5, today.

Bogley teamed up with his Landon schoolmate, Jackie Yates, to advance to the semifinals in the national junior doubles.

The Bogley-Yates duo defeated Tom Lewyn and Peter Golden of New York, 7—5, 6—4.

In the national boys' tourney, Tim Coss of Sidwell Friends School, Washington, D. C., pounded his way by the quarter-finals with a 6—2, 6—3 triumph over Lawrence Harrison of Brookline, Mass.

Not so fortunate was Teddy Rogers of Landon. Rogers, Washington's boys' champ, fell by the wayside as he lost to Ted Jax of Hamtramck, Mich., 6—2, 6—3.

Coss' foe tomorrow is the top-seeded Jax.

Coss and Rogers, teamed in the boys' doubles, were whipped in the quarter-finals by Harrison and John Hahratian of Detroit, 7—5, 6—2.

Bill Bennings

At Gulfstream.

Dear Folks: Ranking alongside the age-old problem of what happens to used razor blades is the constant puzzler of the turf—just where do jockeys disappear when their saddle usefulness is at an end? That question can be answered at Gulfstream Park, writes friend Horace Wade, as former saddle mights get together on the lawns to talk over great races and thoroughbreds of another era, and watch youngsters sallying forth in the bright silks they once so proudly sported themselves. Two of these erstwhile horse pilots are Frank Catrone and Freddy Stevens, the former trainer for the Allen T. Simmons stable and the latter a prominent jockey agent. Catrone once rode for Harry Sinclair's Rancocas Stable when Sam Hildreth was king of the trainers' roost, and he now puts into effect the many things he learned at that master horseman's knee. He also booted horses home for many other top outfits, although his keenest delight was in winning the Dixie Handicap on Sandy Ford in 1930 for a prize of $26,025. Sandy Ford was a one-eyed fellow whose gameness and speed endeared him to racegoers of that season, despite which he was a 40-to-1 shot in the Dixie. Another member of the field was Inception, piloted by the present jockey agent, Freddy Stevens, a despised outsider at 80 to 1, yet at the head of the stretch the favorites were conspicuous by their absence as Sandy Ford and Inception hooked up in a spine-tingling stretch duel all the way to the wire. With only yards to go Stevens reached for his whip. He admits this strategical error cost him the race. As he swung the bat Inception flinched just enough to hand the purse to Sandy Ford by the grace of a blood-red pair of nostrils. "Too much whip is sometimes as disastrous as no whip," said Freddy. "But it is hard to make young riders believe it." BILL.

Terps Step Up Passing Game In Final Drill for Georgia

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 30.—Georgia's Bulldogs won't monopolize tthe airlines when they meet Maryland in the Gator Bowl here Thursday because the Old Liners intend to throw the ball around quite a bit themselves.

This was clearly indicated under a hot Florida sun at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station today as the Terrapins staged their last workout for the game. The frisky Terrapins filled the air with footballs and they didn't do it for the entertainment of the 900 spectators.

Quarterback Vic Turyn, Maryland's No. 1 pitcher, wasn't the only one doing the throwing today. Halfbacks Lu Gambino and Johnny Baroni, a sophomore who is being primed for this battle, and Quarterback Joe Tucker had their hands in the act.

With Gambino, Turyn and Johnny Baroni in the same backfield, the Terps added more versatility to their attack. All three can pass and run and Tatum's idea is to keep Georgia guessing as to what each of the trio will do when he gets the ball.

Georgia Scout Ralph Jordan, who saw Maryland tied by N. C. State, didn't see much of Maryland's passing game and neither did Vanderbilt Coach Red Sanders, who gave Georgia a fill-in on the Terrapins.

Both Jordan and Sanders were impressed by Gambino and company's running attack. With this knowledge, Tatum feels satisfied that the Bulldogs will concentrate their defense to halt a running game.

That Georgia will unload with everything it has in the way of an aerial offense is a certainty. Their quarterback, Johnny Rauch, is the second best flinger in the Nation and their running game is far below that of Georgia teams of the past few years.

Both teams boast splendid pass-defense records, Maryland being third and Georgia ninth in the country. Only 40 passes out of 132 attempts were completed against Maryland while the Bulldog secondary has allowed 45 completions out of 116 tries against it.

Over 2500 general admission tickets went on sale this morning and were quickly gobbled up . . . Tatum and Wally Butts were guest speakers at the Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon today. These moaning coaches had the group in stitches with predictions of dire things in store for their respective teams Thursday . . . Quarterback Joe Tucker and Fullback Harry Bonk came away from a dog track with a helmet full of cash.

Bowling

FRED MURPHY has taken over as manager of the Bethesda Bowling Center on Georgetown rd. Murphy is promoting the fourth annual Bethesda Handicap Tournament next Sunday which the National Duckpin Bowling Congress is sanctioning, and hopes to attract quite a large field.

First prize is $100, and other prizes will be governed according to the number of entries. It will be five games, with 128 scratch and three-fifth handicap. Entry fee is $6.50.

WASHINGTON BOWLERS have reason to be proud of their contribution to charity in the last eight days.

Approximately $725 will be turned over to various charities as a result of four tournaments.

The Sister Kenny competition at Hyattsville brought in more than $100 while attracting a record field.

Biggest donation came from the special match between Julie Singer's All-Stars and Jack Talbert's Stars at Colonial Village, where some $317 was raised for the Bowlers' Victory League. Then followed the youngsters vs. Veterans' Yuletide benefit at King Pin for the Mile-O'-Dimes that produced $100, while as the closing event, Harry Mudrick's Thrifty League at King Pin last Sunday brought out an additional $200 for the March of Dimes fund.

Secretary Arville Ebersole of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress is accepting entries for the national tournament scheduled Saturday, January 10, at the Boston ave. (Massachusetts) alleys in Bridgeport, Conn. It will be the eighteenth annual classic, and Washington will be heavily represented. Most of the men's major District League rollers already have entered.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

Running into debt isn't nearly so upsetting as running into your creditors.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Agency Loyalty Boards Expected to Complete 80 Per Cent of Cases

Agency loyalty boards are a vital link in the President's loyalty program. If these boards do their job expertly, the Civil Service review board will handle only a handful of cases.

Officials estimate that 80 per cent of the cases will be "washed out" by either the agency boards or department heads. They believe the agency boards will either clear accused employes, or else they will build up convincing cases against them that the employes won't appeal. All of which makes it clear that the big work load must be carried by the agency boards.

Each agency must appoint one or more boards. It's estimated that between 150 and 200 boards will be set up eventually both here and in the field service. These are among the boards that have been appointed:

NAVY: J. S. Davitt, chairman, and Capt. E. C. Rogers are the only other permanent members. A third member representing the accused employe's bureau will be appointed when his case is heard. Bureau members are:

W. Richard Lomax, Marines; Lewis T. Harrison, Ships; J. N. Stonesifer, Naval Operations; Earl Hollenback, Aeronautics; Lawrence Fern, Medicine and Surgery; P. P. Brown, Supplies and Accounts; Frank K. Dewald, Ordnance; D. H. Stiles, Yards and Docks, and J. R. Durnell, Personnel.

COMMERCE: Adrian S. Fisher, chairman; Oliver S. Short and John L. Tappin.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE: H. Earl Cook, chairman; Russell Shearer and William H. Moroney.

MARITIME: Wade Skinner, chairman; G. H. Helmbold, J. L. Bates, A. J. Williams, B. L. Hunter and F. E. Hickey.

COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISORS: John C. Davis, chairman; Edgar Hoover and Frederich V. Waugh.

PHILIPPINE WAR DAMAGE: P. L. Charles, chairman; John K. Ayers, Walter B. Lang, John Snure and Guillerno Gomez.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING: F. E. Christofene, chairman; Preston Hipsley, Henry H. Wright and James W. Broderick.

OFFICE OF DEFENSE TRANSPORTATION: Frank Perrin, A. H. Glass and F. A. Silver.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS: Commissioners Rosel K. Hyde and Edward M. Webster. A third member, an employe, is to be appointed.

SELECTIVE SERVICE RECORDS: Donald O. Omer, chairman, Ronald Holmes and Mathews Smith.

The list will be continued here tomorrow.

HOLIDAY: This won't be a partial holiday for Federal workers. That's positive and definite. Yesterday's widespread rumors of this and that agency to close this afternoon are just so much bunk. However, all agencies have been encouraged to grant annual leave to those employes who can be spared today and Friday.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS Administration and Board will pay all their employes here by check starting January 9. Employes in both agencies have had the choice of being paid either in cash or by check. Only 375 of the 2500 employes prefer cash payments. Officials have decided to discontinue cash payments because of the extra work involved.

CIVIL SERVICE: In its annual report to Congress, the Civil Service Commission will seek amendments to the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944. It's sure to recommend: (1) that veterans be required to make a passing grade of 70 on competitive exams before the 5 and 10 preference points will be added, and (2) that 10-point preference for disabled veterans be given only those who have a 10-point, or more, service disability.

Another possible suggestion is this—that the act of 1912 be repealed. The commission is most concerned that the courts will declare this law to be in effect. If they do, the promotion and lay-off systems in Government must be radically changed—a change that would lead to a Government made up largely of veterans.

Chest Told Work Near Breakdown

15% Budget Slash Means Drastic Cuts In Personnel; New Fund Effort Planned

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Efforts to meet the social welfare needs of Greater Washington are "dangerously near a breakdown."

This was what F. Elton Rogers, chairman of the budget committee of the Washington Community Chest, told the chest's board of directors yesterday as they passed on budgets for local agencies for 1948.

As approved, the budgets were pared down generally 15 per cent from 1947 levels and will mean drastic cuts in personnel at Washington Chest agencies. The board of directors also moved to take steps to raise additional funds to finance Chest activities in 1948.

As a preliminary step, they the Chest's executive committee to study ways of raising supplemental funds for the Community Chest as a whole and to report back to the federation's board of trustees by February 15.

"Public Apathy" Blamed

Rogers, in submitting the budget committee's report, pointed to the "appaling result of the apathy on the part of the contributing public" in 1948 Chest finances. He explained that the Washington Chest has $46,000 less to use in 1948 than it had in 1944, although the dollar is worth approximately 34 cents less.

The Washington Community Chest is a member of the Community Chest Federation, which has reached only 83.45 per cent of its $3,900,000 goal for 1948, or a total of $3,254,422.37.

The Chest is appropriating $1,746,000 for Washington member agencies. Of this total, $109,760 is earmarked for four agencies which will be affected by the proposed merger of the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies. The budget committee directed that a sixth of this earmarked sum be appropriated during the first two months of 1948, while the question of tthe merger is being decided. Agencies affected by the merger are the Community Chest administrative headquarters, the Council of Social Agencies, the Social Service Exchange and the Volunteer Office.

Council to Protest Single Sum

Mrs. Thomas F. Norton, representing the Council of Social Agencies, told the diretcors that the council intends to protest the lumping together of these funds as being not legal under Chest by-laws.

Alfred Effinger Smoot, a member of the Chest committee conkidering the merger, said a tentative meeting to discuss progress of the plan has been set for January 6. He said he would not want to predict the outcome of the merger negotiations, since a "relatively large" area of disagreement still exists.

The meeting was highlighted by introduction of a resolution by the Rev. A. T. Mollegen of the Department of Social Welfare of the Washington Federation of Churches, which proposed letting individual member agencies solicit added revenues from the community up to the original amount approved by the budget committee for the agency's operation.

'Chaos' Feared From Plan

Dr. L. F. Schmeckebier, who offered the resolution finally adopted, said the original motion "throws the bars down to unlimited solicitation."

W. W. Atwood, who also opposed the resolution, said its adoption would mean "the complete end of the Community Chest and chaos in Washington." He said that it would be like "committing suicide" to permit individual agencies to have supplemental drives.

Atwood's statement was indorsed by G. Wowland Chase, president of the Family Service Association, who said, "Perhaps we are faced with the end of the Chest if we can't raise the funds needed by the agencies. Then we will be back where we were before 1929—the fundamental principle of the Chest will be gone."

Ray H. Everett, executive secretary, District of Columbia Social Hygiene Society, who had said the budget earmarkings were "like meeting a beggar on the street, handing him a quarter, and telling him to buy himself a turkey dinner," asked whether the Community Chest was paying more and more expense which should be borne by public expense," he asked.

Surprise Visit

Officials See Child Care Centers

Capitol and District officials yesterday made a surprise tour of four of Washington's five public child day care centers.

In the group were Kimball Sanborn, of the Senate Appropriations Committee staff, assigned to work with the District Appropriations Subcommittee; Raymond F. Clapp, acting District director of public welfare; Arthur R. Pilkerton, District auditor; and Miss Lucille Lewis, superintendent of the centers.

They visited the D Street Center, 314 D st. se.; Parkside Center, 3785 Grant st. ne.; Mott Center, 4th and W sts. nw.; and Harrison Center, 13th and V sts. nw.

After the visit Sanborn said of the centers; "They are very well run, they are clean, and a credit to the officials in charge." He said they entered one center as the children were saying grace before lunch, and "it was quite a sight."

The tour was touched off in part by a protest to Senators serving on District committees from attorney Claude A. Thompson against closing of the Grant day care center, in the 2100 block of G. st. nw., on Dec. 24. Among those who received the letter was Senator Henry C. Dworshak, (R., Idaho) chairman of the Senate District appropriations subcommittee.

Thompson is attorney for eight citizens who have asked District Court to restrain District officials from closing the center.

Board to Hear Case Against Murphy Today

Attorney for Accuser Asks Right to Appear As 'Friend of Court'

Fireworks are expected at the opening session this afternoon of a hearing on charges that District Fire Chief Clement Murphy demoralized his department.

Attorney William J. Rowan, counsel for Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, yesterday requested permission to appear in the proceedings, which begin at 2 p. m. today, in the Municipal Center Police Trial Board room.

His request was made in a petition sent to the special trial board members asking that he be designated as "amicus curiae (friend of the court)" in order to submit additional information which might have a bearing on the case and offer other "material assistance."

Attorney Martin F. O'Donoghue, counsel for Chief Murphy, who also received a copy of the petition, said last night he would vigorously oppose the granting of such authority. O'Donoghue said: "Rowan is not really a friend of the court in htis matter. He has a deep personal, partisan interest on behalf of Captain Conroy and the firefighters' union who have employed him."

In his petition, Rowan asked that permission be granted before the three-man board, headed by Austin F. Canfield, rules on charges or accepts a plea from Chief Murphy. The other board members are Joseph A. Wilner and William P. McCracken, jr.

Rowan declared that since the hearing was of great public interest and since the matter of determining the charges was made a joint responsibility of Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, the prosecutor, and the board, the group should permit him to offer pertinent information for their action.

Chief Murphy was charged by his subordinate, Captain Conroy, with demoralizing his department during a hearing on Capitol Hill last summer. District Commissioners ordered the captain, who heads the local union of fire fighters, to substantiate his charges or face charges himself.

Three members of the corporation counsel's office investigated Conroy's statement of charges, and their secret report was turned over to Maher for preparation of formal charges. Maher also was named to prosecute the charges before the board of three attorneys.

Even at Present Prices, Butter's Not Everything

St. Paul (U.P.).—In this age, a Minnesota creamery is more than a butter-making plant.

A survey by the University of Minnesota farm school shows that more than 17 per cent of all sales of creameries in 1946 were from other than butter.

In 1934, when the first survey was made, about 8 per cent of sales were from sidelines.

Now, most creameries in the State operate as feed and livestock stores, poultry and egg-marketing plants and most of them have locker systems.

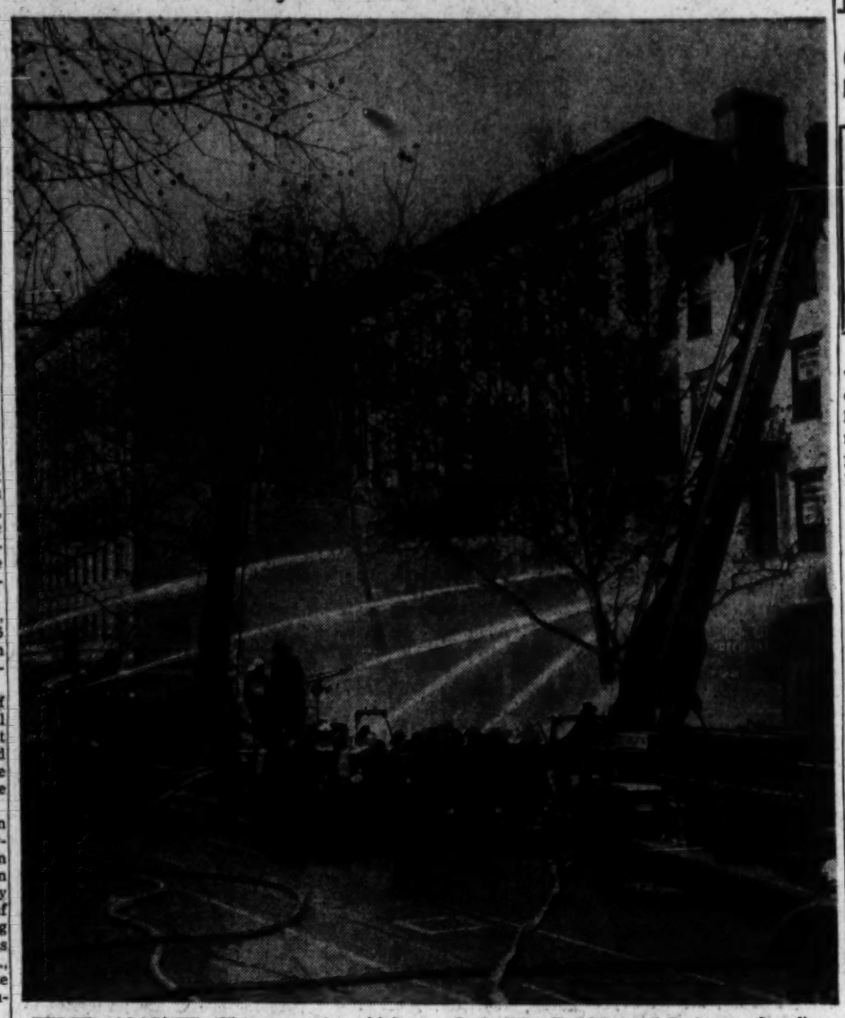
Fireman Killed, Dozens Felled in G St. Fire



THREE ALARMER—Firemen using high-pressure pumps shoot water into the Hillyard Optical Co. Building, 711 G st. nw. One fireman was killed fighting the blaze

RELATED THEIR STORIES—Residents of the building at 711 G st. nw., swept by a three-alarm fire yesterday, talk over their experiences. They are (from left) James H. McCullough, who jumped from the second floor to the fire escape on another building; Edward Alves, Mrs. Pat Peake, both of whom were rescued by ladder from third-floor rooms, and Barbara Grayson, who turned in the fire alarm heavily damaged by smoke and water.

Fire Marshal Raymond Roberts said that a preliminary investigation indicated that the fire started in oil spilled on the basement floor.

He said that the tank was filled early in the day and that oil apparently had leaked into a pit where the furnace was located.

Gas Masks No Protection

Dense smoke poured through the building and into the street. Firemen who entered the building even with gas masks were forced out gasping for breath. Five overcome by the smoke were treated at the scene.

The stubborn blaze was brought under control only after firemen flooded the basement and smothered the fire under the charred first floor.

Thirty-eight pieces of apparatus responded to the three-alarm blaze which tied up traffic more than two hours. During the tie-up, Capital Transit substituted buses for streetcars between 5th and G sts. nw. and the Eckington terminal at 4th and T sts. ne.

Nevitt was found crumpled over a fire hose in a first-floor workroom. His mask was off and skin had been burned from his face and hands.

Firemen said they heard him shout for help but it was 20 minutes before they could reach him. Six hoses were used to lay a curtain of water before three firemen could get through.

Dr. William Claudy, fire department doctor, pronounced Nevitt dead at the scene.

After Nevitt's body was removed from the building Murphy ordered all firemen from the building and the water tower was brought into use to flood the basement.

Employes, Customer Escape

The fire was discovered by Barbara Grayson, clerk in the optical shop, who saw smoke pouring out of a ventilator. She called the fire department while Thomas Curran, head optician, held shut a door leading to the basement. Two other employes and a customer left by the front door.

Three box alarms at 11:36 a. m., 11:42 a. m. and 11:46 followed the telephone call.

LEON NEVITT
Loses life

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alves and Mrs. Pat Peake, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Alves, were brought down a ladder from their third floor apartment.

Mrs. Peake said she had awakened to find the room full of smoke.

James H. McCullough said that he was asleep in his second floor room when the fire broke out. He awoke when smoke strangled him, he said. He kicked out the screen in his window and jumped to a fire escape on the next building, he told police.

Two firemen given oxygen at the scene after they were overcome by smoke were Pvt. Anthony B. Mileo, 33, of 516 7th st. ne., of No. 10 Engine Company, and Pvt. James E. Shaffer, 30, of 14 Hillside rd., Greenbelt, of No. 12 Engine Company. Both returned to duty.

Roberts said last night that he could not estimate total damage until after a survey of adjoining buildings was completed. Basements of several stores were flooded, he said.

Bernard B. Hillyard, owner of the building, said he was not ready to estimate damage. He said it was covered by insurance.

Engaged Christmas Day

Nevitt made his home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd N. Nevitt. His father, and engineer with the Baltimore & Ohio, was on a run and didn't learn of his son's death until his return at 7 p. m.

A native of Grafton, Va., Nevitt moved to Washington in 1940 from Clarksburg, W. Va., and enlisted in the Army in 1941. He served as a staff sergeant in the Southwest Pacific with the Thirteenth Air Force and was decorated with five battle stars.

On Christmas Day Nevitt became engaged to Miss Vera Small of 1326 Kennedy st. nw.

In addition to his parents he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Maxine Pavlina, 1209 M st. nw., and Mrs. Helen Boone, 1440 Columbia rd. nw.; a brother, T/5 Charles Nevitt, serving with the Army in Germany, and a half sister, Miss Lucille Bissett of Steubenville, Ohio.

$1000 Fire Routs Three After Children Give Alarm

A fire of undetermined origin routed three persons from a three-story building at 325 U st. nw. at 4:45 p. m. yesterday. The owner, W. G. Madison, was first warned of smoke pouring out of a third-story window by neighborhood children. Firemen prevented the fire from spreading from the third-story ceiling. Damage was estimated at more than $1000.

D. C. Escapes Cold Wave as East Shivers

Washington, relatively, basked in mild weather yesterday as much of the rest of the Nation donned wristers and ear muffs.

The local "mildness" ranged between a low of 22 degress at 6:56 a. m. to a high of 39 at 3:26 p. m.

Weebee

Today's weather was to be cloudy and mild, with temperatures ranging to 47 degrees. Tomorrow, said the weatherman, will continue cloudy and mild, with some rain.

Sub-zero cold benumbed sections of the northern Midwest and the East yesterday. A biting 25-mile wind whipped a cold wave across the Canadian border into Montana and North Dakota, with the thermometer dropping to 12 degrees below zero in Pembina, N. Dak., at noon.

Upper New York State recorded the Nation's coldest temperatures, down to 30 degrees below zero at the Wanakena Reserve. Forecasters said temperatures would begin rising today in northern New York.

Naylor Gardens Sale Settled

Tenants Assured Protection From Eviction and Rent Rises Until April

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Sale of Naylor Gardens to the Veterans Cooperative Housing Association is slated for speedy completion by an agreement reached at the Capitol yesterday.

The agreement was made about 1:45 p. m. after two days of hearings before a House subcommittee headed by Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.). The settlement apparently ended efforts to block the sale by the Naylor Gardens Association, representing tenants who declined to buy individual apartments as members of the veterans coop are doing.

Hoffman sat in on the final closed-door conference and at the end said B. T. Fitzpatrick, a director of Defense Homes Corp., which is selling the property, would describe the agreement.

Protective Clause Provided

Fitzpatrick said Defense Homes will offer a month-to-month lease to present tenants who are not members of the coop. The lease will provide the tenants the protective clase already written into the proposed sales contract.

It will protect them against eviction and rent increases, except those obtained under rent control, until expiration of the District Rent Act next March 31. The lease wil lalso assore tenants who do not belong to the coops the same privileges, services, and facilities as coop members who live in Naylor Gardens.

He said Defense Homes will send the leases to the tenants by registered mail, and they will have probably 10 days to sign them. The lease will let tenants give up apartments on 30 days' notice, but the Coop will not be able to evict tenants, to mive in its own members, until after the end of rent control.

Formal Approval Needed

Fitzpatrick emphasized formal action by the Defense Homes Corp. is still needed to complete the sale, but this is forthcoming. He said the board will meet next week.

Title to the property will not be transferred to the veteran group until after the end of the period given tenants to sign the leases.

Naylor Gardens, built during the war, has 748 apartment units. VCHA bid $5,125,000 for the property, and is ready to make the 10 per cent down payment that will get it. Reconstruction Finance Corp. will carry the mortgage.

About 430 persons have joined VCHA and made a 20 per cent down payment on individual apartments, but only about 200 have yet obtained occupancy, according to Roberts.

Hope Diamond

Famed Gem Appraised At $176,920

The fabulous Hope diamond, whose value has been variously estimated up to two million dollars, has been officially appraised at a modest $176, 920, it was revealed yesterday in an appraisal of the late Evalyn Walsh McLean's personal property filed in District Court. Mrs. McLean died last April.

Valued higher than the 44½ karat Hope diamond was the 92½ karat diamond, Star of the East, also owned by Mrs. McLean and appraised at $185,000.

The Hope diamond, which came into Mrs. McLean's possession in 1912, was purchased for $154,000. The Star of the East cost $120,000. Mrs. McLean said in her book, "Father Struck It Rich."

Other Personal Property

Her entire personal property was appraised at $705,307.55 with jewelry aggregating $606,110.80; household effects, $85,387.90; books, $383; autos, $4385. Several thousand dollars in stocks were included.

Among other jewelry were a platinum dinner ring set with diamonds and appraised at $47,175, a ruby necklace containing a large diamond, $30,550; a platinum bracelet set with diamonds and rubies, $19,250; a platinum necklace set with diamonds, $19,443; a diamond and platinum tiara, $4556; velvet evening bag set with diamonds, $1212, and a gold cigarette box set with diamonds and rubies, $1586.

Household effects ranged from six Walt Disney illustrations in color, valued at $9, to a banquet table garnishment including a pair of 12-light candleabra appraised at $2500.

Household Items

Other household items: Ecru Ecru Burano lace banquet cloth with 24 napkins, $600; 7 sets of 35 sheets and 6 pillowcases each, satin with handmade lace edges, $530; English 4-post Hepplewhite double bed with hand decorated canopy, $325; 27 large ostrich and peacock feather fans, $675; miniature Limoges enamel tea set, $300; heavy cut crystal service, 268 pieces, $800; 14-karat gold toilet set, $320; 2 sets of 12 doilies and one runner each with Burano lace panels, $300.

Among other personal property was half interest in a gold ingot valued at $8000.

Under terms of Mrs. McLean's will, the jewels and the principal of her estate are to be kept in trust until the youngest of her grandchildren, 5-year-old. Mamie Spears Reynolds, becomes 25. Then the estate is to be divided among the grandchildren.

D. C. Board Orders Fuel Oil Supply Study

Committee Ordered To Submit Reports Daily as Precaution

Washington will not unknowingly be caught short on fuel oil, the District Commissioners decreed yesterday.

Seeing no cause for immediate concern, they ordered J. Thomas Kennedy, District superintendent of weights, measures and markets, to head a fuel oil study committee, and submit daily reports to the Commissioners.

The Commissioners took the action in regular meeting following receipt of a warning from the Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee that the Eastern States face a 15 per cent fuel oil shortage between now and March. Appointment of a District fuel oil coordinator, with power to set up rationing, was recommended.

"Everybody (in the District) is getting fuel oil as far as I can see," declared Kennedy.

Kennedy said he would ask representatives of the Washington Board of Trade and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association to serve on his committee. Two inspectors from his department, he said, will be freed of other duties to spend full time keeping tabs on local fuel oil supply and demand.

Kennedy and his committee will serve entirely in an advisory capacity, the Commissioners said, declaring there was no pressing need of the appointment of a coordinator.

D'Alesandro Urges Lower Consumption

Baltimore, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—Mayor Thomas d'Alesandro today asked all Baltimore users of fuel oil to turn down their thermostats.

After he was told by a group of 28 oil distributors, wholesalers and retailers that a critical shortage exists, the Mayor issued a proclamation calling for what approximates voluntary rationing of fuel oil at a household level.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 30 (A.P.).—Fifteen-year-old Jimmy Van Gelson was unhappy over the separation of his father and stepmother, so he ran away from his Jackson, Mich., home a week ago.

Detective Clarence Caroll said the boy was picked up in the bus terminal where he had gone to sleep with only 5 cents in his pocket.

Jimmy told the officer that he wanted to return home, but first he wanted his stepmother who "was good to me" to reunite with his father. He left home because he thought it would cause them to "go back together."

Annexation Increases Staunton Population

Staunton, Va., Dec. 30 (A.P.).—The city of Staunton will add 3461 citizens to its population and 3593 more acres of land to its city limits tomorrow.

In an annexation order signed by a three-man tribunal here yesterday, Staunton acquired the additional citizens and territory from adjacent Augusta County.

It was a legal victory for the city which had asked that the annexation become effective on December 31, 1947, as against the county board of supervisors' request that the date become effective December 31, 1948—a year later.

Area News in Brief

Jingle Winner Gives His Wife Credit

A wife's promotion efforts brought home a winner yesterday in the final jingle contest sponsored by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board.

Irving F. Hale, 5239 N. Carlyn Spring rd., Arlington, attributed his success in the board's final "Safe December" campaign to his wife, Grace:

"She not only informed me of the contest, but delivered the jingle in person to the Municipal Building to beat the deadline," he said.

Hale

Hale, a clerk for the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, received a table model radio from Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District Division of the American Automobile Association and member of the Advisory Board, in a ceremony in Cleveland's office at 11 a. m. yesterday.

"They're sold in Maryland."

The District of Columbia and each State bordering on Maryland has some form of motor vehicle inspection.

Whitehead, Noted Harvard Savant, Dies

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 30.—Alfred North Whitehead, Harvard professor emeritus who had won nearly every honor open to a philosopher in England and the United States, died today.

Whitehead

The British-born mathematician and metaphysical logician had shaped his own world—one from which he had banished time and space. His works were clothed in a scholarship which was the admiration of other philosophers but the despair of general readers.

First public landmark on the 86-year-old savant's quest for the unity of human knowledge was "Principia Mathematica," written in collaboration with his most famous pupil, Bertrand Russell, in an attempt to prove that mathematics and formal logic are one and the same thing.

Had Seminar with Hocking

Dr. Wihtehead, a graduate of Trinity College, Cambridge, in England, hod more honors than disciples. He was given honorary degrees at St. Andrews, Manchester, Wisconsin, Harvard, Yale and Montreal universities. In 1915 he was president of the Mathematical Association in England. Since 1903 he had been a fellow of the Royal Society and since 1931 of the British Academy, the two highest honors that can come to a man of science in England.

He joined the Harvard faculty as professor of philosophy in 1921 and until recently, as a senior member of Harvard's Society of Fellows, he had guided a group of outstanding students appointed for three years of independent study and research.

He graded students with either honors or flunks. There was no middle ground with him.

Doctor Whitehead and Prof. William E. Hocking, also of Harvard's department of philosophy, conducted the university's first double-header seminar. The subject was metaphysics and the procedure was for one of the professors to start the discussion and the other to keep it going. Occasional disagreements between the two added interest to the seminar.

Philosophers' Philosopher

"Conventional English is the twin sister of barren thought," Dr. Whitehead once wrote—and it has been called one of his clearest sentences. His writings were as full of prophecy, symbolism and obscurity as a Greek oracle.

He looked like a philosopher's philosopher that he was. He wore a stiff, white, almost-clerical collar and a cape instead of an overcoat. He was stoop-shouldered, with a ruff of white hair around his nearly bald head and had merry, gray eyes.

He drew to Harvard scholars from all over the world who wanted to talk to him.

In 1931, on his seventieth birthday, 41 of the most distinguished philosophers in America gathered at the Harvard Club in Boston to do him honor.

Two weeks before his death, he and Mrs. Whitehead had celebrated their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary.

A son, Thomas North Whitehead, is director of the graduate management training program at Radcliffe College, and a daughter, Miss Jessie Marie Whitehead, is a librarian at Harvard's Widener Library.

The family announced no funeral services would be held but that memorial services would be conducted at Harvard's Memorial Church next Tuesday afternoon.

1600 Cafeteria Workers Expect To Start GSI Strike Tonight

The strike against Government Services, Inc., is expected to open officially at midnight tonight, but the 1600 cafeteria workers will probably withhold picketing until Monday.

A spokesman for Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers, UPWA (CIO), said strike preparations were well underway. Because of the holiday, however, the strike will actually begin when all Government employes return to work, he said.

Meanwhile, neither side held out hope that negotiations could be resumed before expiration of the old contract tonight.

The National Labor Relations Board is expected today to dismiss [illegible] for the employer. An NLRB a petition from GSI for an election to determine the lawful bargaining official said the decision would be based on the Taft-Hartley Act provision tha tdenies NLRB privileges to a union that has failed to comply with the act.

Thus, this strike would assume the character of pre-Wagner Act strikes—a simple test of economic strength. Although employers may have and have bargained with unions that failed to file non-Communist affidavits and financial statements under the Taft-Hartley Act, GSI has expressed the view that this failure disqualifies Local 471 as bargaining agent.

Last night, the Washington Chapterof Americans for Democratic Action joined in the controversy by urging GSI in a letter to President U. S. Grant, 3d, to resume negotiations "without further delay."

Col. Julius I. Peyser, Washington attorney and chairman of the Citizens Committee to Support the Cafeteria Workers, wrote General Grant yesterday that his group is launching a drive to raise $50,000 for the workers.

Pre-Nuptial Parties Begin for Miss Thomas

By Marie McNair

BLONDE and lively Marye Thomas who'll say "I do" with Jesse Spalding of New York on January 10, will have Mrs. Stuart Taylor, also of New York as her matron of honor, and some of her Washington sister debs of two seasons ago, as other attendants.

Mrs. Lewis MacCracken—she was Francine Whitten—will be a bridesmaid so will Miss Leila Dickey, Miss Joan Exnicios, Mrs. Sam Dunham, the former Nancy Mayo and Miss Joyce Spalding, sister of the prospective bridegroom, who is making her debut in New York this year.

Handsome Mr. Spalding's best man will be Lee Ault of New York and in the group of ushers are Frank Shields, David Close, Walter Brooks, son of Mrs. Alf Heiberg of Washington; Harold Tenney and Sanford Johnson.

A whole flock of parties are starting up for this little bride-to-be and her fiance. Miss Exnicios will give a cocktail party next Monday; Mrs. Morris Cafritz will have one on Wednesday.

After they leave the reception following the wedding of Miss Nina Lunn and Nat Luttrell on Thursday, January 8, Keith Carlin has invited them for cocktails. The next day Mrs. Elliott Maxwell of New York, who is Mr. Spalding's mother, will entertain at cocktails and Mrs. Lawrence Baker has graciously loaned her house for the occasion.

Miss Marye's mother, Mrs. Helen Marye Thomas, is already here from her ranch in Nevada and is at the Mayflower with her daughter. Capt. William D. Thomas, father of the bride-elect, will be down from New York the day before the wedding which will take place at 4:30 at the Sulgrave Club with the reception to follow.

CAPT. ELLIS ZACHARIAS, the man who forecast the Pearl Harbor attack, has two sons who hope to follow their father's naval career.

Ellis, jr., is a midshipman at Annapolis and Jerrold, his younger brother, is prepping for the Naval Academy at the academy's school at Bainbridge, Md.

Last night the two boys had a holiday party—a small dinner, followed by dancing at their home in Chevy Chase.

TOWN TOPICS:

General and Mrs. Clayton Adams and their Dobermans have given up trailer life now that General Adams is to be representative for American Television, Inc., and they've found a house in Georgetown. The Adamses spent most of Christmas Day moving from Mrs. Martin Vogel's house to their new abode at 1667 32d st. The house, last occupied by Durham Rogers, was furnished by him with some beautiful Italian antiques.

What sounds like one of the most intellectual parties of the season, will probably turn out to be the most fun. It is the tea on Sunday, January 11, which Mr. and Mrs. Vernon B. Lowrey will give in honor of the Oxford University debating team—Sir Edward Boyle, Kenneth Harris and Anthony Benn.

Mrs. John N. Greely's luncheon on January 7 will be to honor a sister trio—Mrs. Albert Bowley, Mrs. Alfred I. duPont and Mrs. Addison Baker. Mrs. duPont's home, Nemours, at Wilmington, is one of the show places of the East Coast. Mrs. Baker owns historic Tuckahoe in Virginia. They will both be here to visit Mrs. Bowley, widow of the general, early in January.

Here Are Ways to Brew Your Own Spirits to Toast Arrival of New Year

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WITHOUT accepting any responsibility for that New Year's hangover, we will share with our customers the most elegant way to achieve the dizziest results! Here's how Metropolitan Club members acquire their special New Year's titillation, start 1948 with a lovely, rosy glow.

The chief steward orders 5 gallons of the creamy brew from a local dairy, pours in seven bottles of Bourbon or rye, mixes well, sprinkles on nutmeg and then relaxes.

For hardier members, allergic to milk and cream, he concocts a Fish House Punch. The Fish House, an old Philadelphia fraternal organization devoted to the finer overtones of good living, spent years of intensive research figuring how to make its members see stars vividly yet with gentlemanly grace. Here is the secret. You start with 2 quarts of water, dissolve three quarters of a pound of sugar, add a quart of lemon juice, 2 quarts of Jamaican rum (it must be dark rum), a quart of brandy, and (optional) a wine glass of peach brandy. Let it sit quietly over night or several nights depending on the stamina of your guests, then run up a red flag before serving! A few connoisseurs, whose taste buds are especially erudite, substitute the blackest tea for innocuous water. The results are interesting but cannot conscientiously be recommended by this column.

Secrets of the 'Cheer' Trade

AFTER solving the holiday cheer problem with such dispatch, albeit not inconsiderable expense, we will share our secrets on how to make champagne and such luxury liquids, cut rate. The recipes were torn from an absorbing little tome titled "Liquor Secrets. Price $3," published nostalgically in 1933, the speakeasy era's end, and presented to us by a friend.

Cider, it says, is the most important substance required in the proper imitation of foreign wines. The sweetest, finest apples have to be ground to uniform pulp. The pumice (result to you and me) should be agitated anywhere from two to four days (depending on the weather!) before putting in a press. The juice is strained, let ferment three or four days (again the weather).

If it ferments too quickly just toss in a pound of black oxide of manganese or a handful of powdered clay into the barrel. When the cider rests comfortably in a barrel just add 2½ gallons of spirit 15 O. P., 2 pints simple sirup, 10 ounces crude tartar, 2 pounds of raisins, 2 ounces of orange-flower water. Skim or rack the barrel after a fortnight. In three to five weeks—there is the basis for the imitation of any foreign wine. With all this behind you it is a comparatively simple matter to make champagne. Here is the final step. Take 20 gallons of your cider. "Add 2 gallons of water, 1 gallon proof spirits, 10 ounces of yeast, 1 pint of honey, 4 drachmas citric acid. Let it stand 12 days in cool cellar, then fine and bottle it if brisk, frothing, sparkling; if not, add more acid and fine it again, repeating the process, if necessary, until suitable for bottling. Add, when bottling, to each about two thimblefuls of a sirup made of dissolving half a pound of rock candy in 1 pint of white wine; then cork, wire and place in position and temperature according to previous instructions." Now you have your choice, roll up your sleeves and get to work or skip around the corner for a bottle of Moet et Chandon. Anyway, happy New Year!

A bowl of foaming eggnog—pale gold in color, creamy rich in texture, topped by a brown sprinkling of nutmeg—is practically indispensable when it comes to toasting in the hopeful, infant New Year.

These days, you can whip it together in a trice with an eggnog mix most of the dairies sell. Or you can make it "from the beginning" as does Gen. A. E. Gandegrift, retiring Commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps, whose eggnog recipe is famous among his friends. Two secrets of the success of this eggnog, says General Vandegrift, are lots of beating and a 24-hour aging process. At the Vandegrift house, eggnog is always made the day before and spends a night and a day in a big pot of ice before it is served.

1 quart whipping cream
1 quart milk
1 pound confectioner's suger
1 quart whiskey
1 quart light rum
7 ounces heavy rum

Beat the egg yolks, whites and whipping cream separately. Into the egg yolks, beat the pound of sugar. Add the light rum next, beating all the while. Then add the heavy rum, whiskey, milk and whipping cream. Fold in the egg whites last of all. Leave the eggnog on ice for 24 hours. Stir it gently just before serving.

Spring Shoes to Be Colorful

The most colorful spring in shoe history is rapidly being made as buyers continue to place heavy orders for bright materials.

Red and green are leading, particularly in calf. St. Louis stylists also report high popularity for red suede. Navy blue is going rapidly in some houses, but is still far behind the red-green team. Balenciaga and gray are both strong.

Black patent leather is getting exceptional play, stylists say, explaining that patent harmonizes with the new dressy theme expected to dominate spring wardrobes. Gleaming accessories of all types—purses, belts, gloves, shoes—will all be to the fore, they say.

Pink suede is "walking right out of the stores" in Miami and other resorts, according to one stylist of resortwear. Most pastels are being sought, however, in ombre or multi-color combinations rather than in all-over shades.

Young Housewife With Fine Home and Good Husband Always Squanders Money He Trusts Her to Bank for Him; How Control Habit?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young housewife with a fine home and good husband, but I have one habit that makes my husband very angry and I hope you can tell me how to overcome it.

This is it: My husband gives me money to take to the bank, and before I get to the bank I see something I want, and no matter how hard I try to resist, I buy the article. After doing this, I don't have enough money for the bank and my husband gets very angry about it.

Once he took over the business of running the house; but after a while he let me run it again, handling the money and all; but I fell right back into this troublesome habit. There doesn't seem to be anything I can do to control it, hard as I try.

Now I've just done it again and I do feel worried. It just means more trouble and I don't want that. So, please advise me how to put a stop to this habit for all time.

P. L.

Recalls the Fable Of Village Idiot

DEAR P. L.: Your only concern about blowing the family savings en route to the bank seems to be childish dread of the furious lecture that's bound to follow when your husband finds out.

In other words, you seem to have no more money-sense, moral sense or sense of responsibility than the proverbial village idiot, the fool in fable who was thoroughly fleeced at the village fair.

Thus in first going over your story of spending, I was inclined to pass you up as a hopeless case, because one can't help people curb faults or behave rationally if they haven't some elements of good sense or good character to bring to their own rescue.

However, Jesus said that a grain of faith no larger than a mustard seed—that is, so small that you'd have to look for it with a magnifying glass—is enough to move mountains, if put to use.

Grain of Sense Could Turn Tide

BY THE same token, maybe a grain of sense is sufficient to light the way out of folly, if one follows the gleam unwaveringly; and on second thought I'm willing to credit you with a spark of sense, due to the fact that you earnestly want to curb your squandering, if only to avoid trouble with your husband.

Now for advice: If your husband ever trusts you with money to put in the bank again, face the fact that with cash in hand you've got no more sales resistance than the village idiot took to the fair, and call on your spark of common sense to keep you on a straight swift course to the bank and home.

Even Jesus didn't wrestle with temptation. He said, "Get thee behind me, Satan." So stay out of shops on the way to the bank. Steer clear of temptation instead of tracking it down. M. H.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Is it possible to dye tan leather gloves brown? L. L.

Yes, tan leather gloves can be dyed brown. Be sure the gloves are clean and use a good commercial leather dye to dye them. Follow the directions which come with the dye. When dyed, dry them at room temperature. So that they dry more quickly and without streaks, stuff the hand part of the glove with tissue so that the air can get to the inside of the fingers. This will also help the gloves to dry in shape. Lay on several folds of paper toweling to dry.

Can you tell me what kind of bugs are eating my Chinese bamboo blinds and what I can do to get rid of them? They are dark brown, hard shelled, six-legged, and about 1/16-inch long. Their heads seem as though they are hinged onto their bodies and they have two feelers. I have used DDT twice and it seems to daze them rather than kill them and I am afraid it isn't doing the thorough job I need. J. W. H.

It is difficult to identify the bugs which are causing damage to your blinds without seeing one. If you will kill a few, wrap them in tissue paper and mail to C. F. W. Muesbeck, Insect Identification, 3130 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, he will be glad to identify them for you and recommend a method for eradicating them.

Could you tell me the titles of any books, and where I can buy them, which give pictures and illustrations of various ways to arrange trays of canapes and hors d'oeuvres for parties? Most cook books only tell how to prepare them and have one illustration. I would like a book of illustrations. I. C. R.

I have not come across an entire book of illustrations such as you wish. However, in a very short time you could compile for yourself a most interesting file of illustrated canape and hors d'oeuvres ideas by clipping the many pictures along this line published in newspapers and women's magazines, both among the articles and the advertisements. Also, the nationally known flour and food companies are always coming forth with new ideas which they distribute in printed form, generously illustrated. A card addressed to these firms will bring such material to you. Such a collection of clippings and pamphlets can be easily and conveniently kept together in a large envelope.

My baby turned over a jar of melted salve on a new rose-colored mohair chair in our living room. Is there any way to remove this stain? J. M. G.

Fresh grease stains sometimes can be removed from upholstered furniture by sponging with a clean cloth saturated with carbon tetrachloride or any cleaning fluid used to remove spots from fabrics. Use light strokes, back and forth, and sponge over an area somewhat larger than the spot. As the cloth with which you sponge becomes soiled, turn it so that only clean parts of the cloth come in contact with the spot. It is difficult to remove stained spots from upholstered furniture because it is impossible to place a pad under the spot to absorb the soil as it is sponged out of the fabric. Also, if there is a layer of soil over the entire chair, the cleaned spot will be as conspicuous as the original spot. For these reasons, if the spot is large, it is advisable to turn the job over to a professional cleaner.

It will be necessary for me to prepare hors d'oeuvres about two hours before serving. Is there any way I can keep the crackers from becoming soggy? C. P. L.

Spreading the crackers with butter or margarine before the topping is put on will help to keep the crackers from becoming soaked, but after two hours, even though buttered, the crackers are bound to lose some of their crispness. If the canapes must be prepared in advance, it is better to use day-old bread in making them instead of crackers. Or you could prepare the fillings in advance and serve them in attractive bowls, letting each guest spread his own cracker. Also, instead of crackers, or in addition to them, you could provide a bowl of potato chips which guests may dip into the prepared fillings.

Goode, Congressional Candidate, Pledges To Aid Measures for Stable Agriculture

Boydton, Va., Dec. 30 (AP).—State Senator Morton G. Goode of Dinwiddie, candidate for the House of Representatives from the Fourth Congressional District today pledged his support to "policies and measures" which would "lead us to a lasting and stable prosperity for agriculture."

Appearing here at a political rally in his behalf, Goode said he was in "thorough accord" with the Rural Electrification Administration's program and was eager to see new lines extended to rural users.

Because of a shortage of copper, he added, the extension program has encountered a bottleneck which could be broken "by temporarily granting more favorable tariff regulations." He said he favors "a liberal appropriation" for REA.

Goode, who is seeking the seat left vacant by the recent death of Representative Patrick H. Drewry of Petersburg, also said he favored the Buggs Island multi-million dollar flood control and power project on the Roanoke River.

Students Save Baby

Virginia U. 'Mayor' Asks Fire Probe

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 30 (Spl.).—Richard Poss, mayor of a University of Virginia housing development for veterans, today called for a full investigation of a fire in which the year-old son of a student was saved by three other students last night.

Poss said he would ask Charlottesville Fire Chief C. H. Page to investigate with a view to determining cause of the fire, and to find out what can be done to prevent a "possible recurrence." He said he believed the fire, which gutted a five-room apartment in the Copley Hills development, was caused by a defective water heater.

The child, Warren D. Elliott, jr., son of a GI student, was carried from the blazing apartment by Francis Withers, a former paratrooper, after he and two other veterans battered their way through a partition to reach his room. He was taken immediately to University Hospital, where he was found to be none the worse for the experience.

The conference will take place January 5 at the office of the Federal Works Agency.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 30 (AP).—A girl who told city police she had shot a man near Baltimore was being held here today pending investigation of her story.

Police Lieut. William Stanley said the girl walked into a police station here yesterday and told officers she had shot a man earlier in the day in a suburan section about three miles from Baltimore. Stanley said she carried the barrel of a .22 caliber rifle in her hands and several hundred bullets in her bag.

Baltimore authorities were notified and reported back that they were unable to find the body at the point the girl had designated. She told police the victim was unknown to her, and that she had shot him twice. Lieutenant Stanley said the girl identified herself as Shirley Ann Homberg of Patterson Park, Baltimore, and gave her age as 18.

Lane said he was unwilling to be drawn into a discussion of the subject at this time.

B. & A. Railway's Plan to Terminate Service Opposed

Baltimore, Dec. 30 (AP).—The Anne Arundel County Board of Commissioners and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen wrote the Public Service Commission today they are opposed to eliminating passenger railway service between Baltimore and Annapolis.

A petition for authority to substitute passenger bus service over the route has been filed with the PSC by the Baltimore and Annapolis railway. A hearing on the matter will probably be held in January.

The commissioners declared in a one-paragraph letter they opposed any "plan of abandonment or curtailment of freight and passenger service" between the two cities.

S. S. Hall Becomes Fauquier Sheriff Tomorrow

Warrenton, Va., Dec. 30 (Spl.).—W. S. Woolf, sheriff of Fauquier County for 34 years, will relinquish his post tomorrow in favor of Sheriff-elect S. S. Hall, jr., who is slated to assume his duties Thursday.

Sheriff Woolf announced his intention to retire prior to the Democratic primary last August. Hall was chosen as the party nominee in the primary and was unopposed for election in November.

George I. Armstrong, a former employe of a Washington bus line, will take office as deputy sheriff on Thursday, succeeding Nick Lewis, who ran against Hall in the August contest for sheriff.

The new sheriff had served as town sergeant of Warrenton for 17 years before announcing his candidacy to succeed Woolf.

Only new member of the county board of supervisors slated to take office Thursday is Roland G. Pierce of Rectortown, who succeeds Hubert B. Phipps. Re-elected members of the board are A. F. Pilcher, J. D. McCarty, L. W. Trenis and Tom Frost.

He said he will file for a place on the Republican primary ballot shortly after January 1.

"My primary purpose is to see that a judge will be elected not appointed," Hillman declared.

Harrison Protests Proposed Fees For Parkway Users

By The Associated Press

Proposed fees for travel on the Blue Ridge pkwy in Virginia met with a protest yesterday from Representative Harrison (D., Va.).

The National Park Service plans to charge 25 cents a car for each trip and $1 for a season ticket beginning about May 1, along the scenic Skyline dr. in Virginia's Shenandoah National Park.

These charges, officials said, are in line with fees collected on the Skyline dr. in Virginia's Shenandoah National Park.

Harrison wrote Newton B. Drury, National Park Service director, that "We of Virginia feel that it is a mistake to impose tolls upon the users of this highway."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Forecast For 1948!

The year will begin with predictions of war, recession, and a third party movement. Congress will come back to deal with European reconstruction and domestic inflation, and will engage in a good deal of debate.

The Nats will buy a right-handed outfielder and butter will hit $1.25 a pound. The usual February snowstorm will paralyze traffic, and everybody will mutter about how efficiently snow is cleaned up "back home."

Senator Taft will explain why the cost of living isn't really as high as it seems and the Russians will demand that we share the secret of the atomic bomb with them, inasmuch as they "already have it anyhow."

The Nats will lose the opening game and President Truman will let it be known that he's available for another term. Henry Wallace will take a walk, and get lost.

Just before Congress adjourns for the summer, somebody will discover that suffrage for the District has been left dangling again, and there will be a great pother about passing the bill at the last minute. The Nats will lose a twin bill to the Red Sox and drop into eighth place.

The "Draft Eisenhower" movement will get up a full head of steam as butter hits $1.50 a pound and John L. Lewis pulls his mine workers out of whatever federation they happen to be in at the moment.

Football will vie with politics and the world series for top headlines as the airwaves crackle with predictions of disaster if the other party is elected. Russia will demand that we share our atomic secrets with her and "reveal" that she has already stockpiled 10,000 bombs.

The stock market will nosedive in response to the election news, which is invariably "bad," and the Redskins will announce that plenty of season tickets are available for next year. Everybody will growl about the prices being charged for Christmas goods.

The New Year will stagger in much as it did 365 days before, accompanied by predictions of war, recession, and a third party movement.

It will, no doubt, be plain by fall
That I'm an unskilled seer.
But nonetheless I wish you all
A happy, bright New Year.

MISCELLANY

The most unusual Christmas ties I've seen are those being sported by gin rummy players. Embroidered on the ties is the legend: "Don't wait! When you're down to ten—knock" . . . Remember our item about the poetic legal definition of drunkenness? Theodore Perros postcards: "George Garrott owes you a cigar. The poem is from the pen of Eugene Field" . . . And A. D. Hagle suggests that District Liner Garrott read "Law Notes," vol. 35, pages 112 and 113 . . . Elisabet M. Stone, founder of the Lizzy Stone League for the Abolition of Long Skirts, bought a new coat in Saks Fifth Avenue the other day—and had to put up a stiff fight to get them to shorten it to a wearable length. When Liz identified herself, the salesgirl capitulated with, "Gee, are you THAT Elisabet Stone?" . . . Today's thanks for tokens for Children's Hospital go to: Elbert R. Averill of 1243 Meigs st. ne., "Rielloe," Mrs. Stanley Rosch of 1279 Brentwood rd. ne., and Mrs. Justine Gallioto of 1240 N. Quinn st., Arlington, Va. . . . Have you seen the new electric cigarette vending machines yet? Instead of pulling the plunger you push a button.

ADD SIGNS

Frank C. Anderson of 615 S. 22d st., Arlington, Va., reports that a 14th st. record shop displays this sign:

"Patronizing us is like making love to a widow. You can't overdo it."

Dick Horton of 10 Verne st., Bethesda, Md., spotted this one for us:

"Bloodworms Walk In."

SURPRISE!

When Peter Xeron of 5446 30th st. nw. finally got around to trying on a pair of gloves given to him for Christmas, he got quite a surprise.

In one of the gloves he found a ring. It appears to be a girl's class ring (what was a girl doing trying on men's gloves?) bearing the date 1946 and the initials W. L. Z.

ADD NAMES

Out along McCeney ave., in Burnt Mills Hills, the houses are set pretty far back from the street and rural-style mailboxes are the geperal rule.

The names on three consecutive boxes form a rather unusual sequence. They are: Laughlin, Merryman, and Stillman.

"REUBEN, REUBEN"

Ruble, ruble, we've been thinking
What a fine world this would be
If you would continue sinking—
Sink the Red economy!

Jerry Boin.

NEW YORK—Two Paris night clubs, the Monsiegneur and the Scheherazade, may revolutionize the night-club industry of America. These two clubs feature all-violin orchestras, whose Gypsy members spread out through the room and do choral numbers. This routine is being emulated now by night clubs in every big American city. Dario, of La Martinique, was the first to try it in New York. He lost heavily, and abandoned the violins a few weeks ago.

Dario first saw the Gypsy orchestra when he returned to his native Budapest. He watched one musician, the collector for the orchestra, go through the club with his right palm up and his left hand clenched. "That's so my boss makes sure I do not steal money while passing through the crowd," the collector explained. "He puts a live fly in my left hand, and when I go back to him the fly must still be there, and alive—as proof that I have not opened my left hand."

President Truman, who this year withdrew his designation of Ray C. Wakefield to reappointment as a member of the Federal Communications Commission, is appointing him to another post. Wakefield will be named head of the American delegation to the intercommunications convention in Geneva. It will last for two years.

Burl Ives, the minstrel, will do, the arrangements of the Civil War folksongs to be used in the new Shaw-Viertel play, "The Survivors." The contract Ives signed calls for a fee of two bottles of Scotch.

Jimmy Durante, in comparing his film career to Gregory Peck's said, "The difference between us is 50 million girls."

Former Senator James Mead of New York will become the director of the A. F. of L.'s League for Political Education. A former Congressman from the West will serve as Mead's assistant.

When an interviewer prodded Mae West about a man who once claimed to have been married to her, Miss West said: "He will always remain in the waste basket of my memory."

Orson Welles' plane, chartered for his flight to Rome to avoid delay in production schedule, made it after a hazardous flight. When the gasoline was almost exhausted, Welles told the pilot: "Right now I'll settle for two broken legs."

Schuman Speaks Slow, Acts Fast

By Drew Pearson

Paris.—(By radio).—Premier Robert Schuman, the foreign-born Frenchman who suddenly was called upon to take over the helm of France last month, has now won so much popular support that the De Gaullist forces are getting worried. Gen. Charles De Gaulle had figured on letting Schuman continue through the cold, lean months of winter—when more strikes are expected—and then take over in the spring. But now, Schuman is making such political headway that De Gaulle is reported planning a speaking trip to drum up more support for himself.

Schuman

The new Premier, who managed to settle the French strikes by getting tough with the Communists, was never heard of before in the United States, and scarcely heard of even in his own country. The reason is that he is one of the most retiring of men. In France, although he lived in Paris for 28 years, he has never had a home of his own. He merely rented one room in the home of a friend, and when elevated to the all-important job of Finance Minister, one year ago, he picked out from the ornate and ostentatious ministry buildings only one small office for himself.

All his life, Schuman has eaten in the restaurant of the Chamber of Deputies—which is about the same as having Speaker Joe Martin go up to the House of Representatives restaurant for all his meals.

Finally, the new Premier is a man of few words. He makes fewer speeches in one year than most French deputies make in a month.

Schuman was born in the Duchy of Luxembourg and spent most of his life under German rule. In fact, there is a vacuum in his career from 1914 to 1918—about which none of his friends talk and which is blank in all biographies—when, it is suspected, he served in the German army. The Communists taunted him with this charge when Schuman made his first appearance on the floor of the Chamber as Premier—whereupon no less a person than former Premier Edouard Herriot, now President of the Chamber, came to his defense.

In Alsace-Lorraine, Herriot said, the Germans made hostages of loyal Frenchmen during the first World War, just as they did of Frenchmen during the second war. Schuman's family, long residents of Lorraine, fought against the Prussians in the War of 1870 and lost. But from that date until 1919 Schuman lived under German rule, was taught in German schools and speaks German as well as he does French.

One year after Lorraine obtained its independence, however, Schuman was elected to the Chamber of Deputies from the new province and has been reelected ever since. This means that he has been a member of the Chamber for a period similar to the terms of the older Congressmen Adolph Sabath of Illinois or Sol Bloom of New York.

Another charge the Communists have hurled at Schuman was that he served under the Vichy government, which technically is true. Appointed by Paul Reynaud as Undersecretary of State for Refugees shortly before France fell, Schuman proved much too liberal for the Vichy government and was one of the first French leaders imprisoned by the Gestapo.

Schuman finally managed to escape from Germany, disguised as a school teacher on vacation. Back in France he joined the resistance movement and held a series of secret meetings in most of the cities of France to report on his own observations of the Nazis. Hitler is finished, he reported.

Schuman's politics are middle-of-the-road with a slight lean to the left, or, to use an old Roosevelt expression, a little left of center. He isn't anywhere near as conservative as De Gaulle and yet he is somewhat more so than the Socialists.

Leon Blum, the aged former Premier who first tried to form a cabinet after the fall of Paul Ramadier, announced that De Gaulle was just as much a menace to France as the Communists. The result was that Blum failed to get De Gaulle's support.

Schuman took a different line. The Communists, he said, were the chief enemy of France, with the result that he got the De Gaullist votes and was elected Premier.

Since then the bald, tight-lipped bachelor Premier of France has become increasingly popular. The people liked the way he put down the strikes. Various labor leaders decided to throw off the Communist yoke and branch out with independent unions of their own. Schuman has said little but has acted fast. His popularity is on the upgrade but, aside from the strikes, he still hasn't done anything about the major problem facing France—inflation, with prices way out of reach.

A new series of strikes is certain before the winter is over unless the first foreign-born Premier of France is able to pull a miracle out of the hat and bring prices to within reach of the French workingman. So far no miracle is within sight.
